PREFACE.

IN undertaking this little book I proposed to myself to get together in small compass, and in a convenient shape for reading and reference, such of the remains of the earliest Latin — primarily inscriptions — as are most important as monuments of the language, with enough explanation to make them fairly intelligible. The need of such a collection had been felt, I found, by others as well as myself, and this need had been only partly met by Wordsworth's "Fragments and Specimens of Early Latin" (London, 1874), a work which, with all its merits, is cumbersome, ill arranged for reference, and too expensive to be widely circulated. The present book is designed first of all for the more advanced of our college students, but I venture to hope that maturer scholars may find it useful as a convenient handbook, since it comprises within a few pages matter somewhat scattered and not very generally accessible.

The book is in no wise meant to teach palaeography. The inscriptions are presented simply as specimens of Latin. The text of each is given in minuscules, without any attempt at representing the appearance or arrangement of the stone or bronze. To have done this last, even roughly, would have greatly increased the bulk and expense of the volume (especially as most of the inscriptions would necessarily have been repeated in minuscules after all, for cursory reading) without rendering it any better for its main purpose. I desired furthermore to avoid everything which would needlessly confuse the eye or the mind of the reader. Thus it seemed best to indicate to the eye omitted final s and m.

And in some cases I have not felt bound to follow the original documents in respect of the division of words; thus I have written plebeive, sublegi, quasei (n. 106 II¹¹¹⁸, n. 109), not plebei ve, sub legi, qua sei; as such inequalities signify nothing but the passing caprice of the writer. Where prepositions are joined to the following noun some will perhaps wish that I had printed them so. But this usage, by no means characteristic of early Latin, but rather of the imperial period, was at no time the prevailing one, and it did not seem worth while to perplex the reader with forms like incastreis (n. 81) and obeas res (n. 104⁴³). But in general the originals have been followed even in the division of words.

As to the selection of inscriptions, I drew the line at Sulla's dictatorship, and admitted nothing later than the law about the quaestors, n. 106. Down to this period it was my aim to give pretty much all the inscriptions that illustrated the old language in any striking way, yet by rigidly excluding less profitable matter to keep the book within narrow limits. Accordingly I threw out (1) inscriptions too fragmentary to give any connected sense, (2) those of little or no linguistic interest, (3) all un-Latin inscriptions, for instance CI. 183 and 194, (4) the Lex Acilia repetundarum and the Lex agraria, though sorely against my will, for reasons given on p. 69. That I have made everywhere the best possible selection, I am by no means sure. — The arrangement of the inscriptions is approximately chronological, — rather more so than in the Corpus Inscriptionum, — but it was natural and convenient to put like material together. And of course in a great many cases the evidence on which monuments are assigned to this or that period is presumptive merely. The Carmen Arvale and the Columna rostrata are put last of all, for reasons which will be apparent.

The book might reasonably have ended with Part I. But it seemed a pity to ignore those few remains, of a legal and liturgical nature, which in their origin far antedate the earliest of our inscriptions and the beginnings of literature, — remains which, in spite of the modernizing process they have undergone, are still in many ways hardly less instructive monuments than the inscriptions themselves. In Part II., therefore, the most noteworthy of this material has been collected. Here of course only the outward form and the diction, with now and then a grammatical detail, can lay claim to antiquity. In these selections I have followed the best editions, noting carefully the few changes I have allowed myself. To have attempted at all to restore the ancient grammatical forms would have been profitless, but I have silently corrected vu and uu, writing divom, mortuom, and the like, even against the tradition. Occasion has been here taken to illustrate somewhat fully the nature of the oldest Roman poetry, according to the principles first laid down by Westphal. It is hoped that this feature, which is quite new, may not be unwelcome. — All literary matter, it will be observed, has been excluded. It was no part of my plan to edit the fragments of Nævius, Ennius, and other early poets. If even the most readable of these had been added, the book would have become much larger, without, as it seemed to me, a corresponding increase in usefulness. Possibly at some time hereafter it may seem best to embody some of these fragments in a separate volume similar to this.

The commentary touches mainly on matters of language. It was not my intention to make the selections the vehicle of systematic instruction in Roman antiquities or law; only such points as came up I have tried to explain enough to make a fair understanding of the text possible. Especially in matters of law the interpretations had to be strictly exoteric; they are not such as a jurist would need, but I hope that for untechnical statements they are fairly accurate. Being myself an ιδιώτης in this department, I could not have attempted more, had it been desirable.

The foundation of the notes in the inscriptional part is, as a matter of course, Mommsen's commentary in the Corpus Inscriptionum. And a good deal of aid, first and last, has been derived, in both parts, from Wordsworth's book mentioned above, — in the main a thorough and painstaking work, despite occasional lapses. These special sources must be acknowledged. But there was plenty of opportunity to supply new remarks and illustrations. In grammar, Corssen's works have been laid most frequently under contribution.

In the Introduction, in spite of the temptation to expand it into a treatise on Latin grammar, I have only registered such leading facts as seemed essential to an intelligent reading of the selections. It is suggested that students learn carefully this introductory part before proceeding to the body of the work.

Several friends have helped me with advice here and there. But I am under the greatest obligations to Professor Lane of Harvard University. He has taken the warmest interest in the work, and besides lending me books, has read and criticised the proof-sheets of the whole. I am sure that there is not a page of the book but is the better for some correction or addition suggested by him; and even this is saying too little. I am also indebted, for aid on points of law, to Professor Gurney of Harvard University and Mr. A. S. Wheeler of this college, both of whom have examined parts of my proof-sheets. To all these I desire to express my hearty thanks.

Thus much in explanation of the plan of the work, and of what is — as well as what is not — in it. The making of the little volume has not been altogether an easy task, and I cannot doubt that it has many defects; I only hope that they are not so serious as to impair altogether its usefulness. I shall be very grateful to any one who will point out errors or propose improvements.

REMNANTS OF EARLY LATIN.

INTRODUCTION.

1. By Early Latin we usually mean the language spoken at Rome down to about the time of the first civil war,—say 672/82,—that is, to the beginning of the Ciceronian period. Of this earlier Latinity we possess, on the whole, rather scanty remains.

2. Through literary channels nothing has reached us in an entire condition except the plays of Plautus and Terence, twenty-six in number, and the short prose treatise of Cato de re rustica. Of other poets—Naevius, Ennius, Lucilius, etc.—we have a good many fragments; of prose writers much fewer. From a time anterior to the beginning of literature, there have been preserved to us a very few prayers, laws, and other formulae; most of this material will be found in Part II. of this book. But all these remains, transmitted to us as they have been indirectly through many hands, have unfortunately been more or less modernized, so that from them alone we could gain but an imperfect idea of the early language.

3. It is the Inscriptions of this period which afford us the surest means of acquainting ourselves with the Latin language in its earlier stages. These alone give certain testimony as to the forms of speech of the time when they were written. Of late years there has been greatly increased activity in collecting and studying Latin inscriptions.

4. The recently awakened interest in the study of early Latin, which has gone hand in hand with the historical or 'comparative' study of language generally, received its first distinct impulse from Friedrich Ritschl (b. 1806, d. 1876), who besides his well-known labors on Plautus, and numerous other contributions, published in 1862 "Priscae Latinitatis Monumenta Epigraphica," a collection of the earliest inscriptions with admirable fac-simile representations. All inscriptions of the republican period are united, with fuller commentary, in the first volume of the "Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum" (Berlin, 1863), edited by Theodor Mommsen. Among the many others who have furthered these investigations, Wilhelm Corssen (b. 1820, d. 1875) deserves special mention for his grammatical researches, embodied in the large work, "Aussprache, Vokalismus und Betonung der lateinischen Sprache," 2 vols. (2d edit., Leipzig, 1868-70), and in two smaller books.

5. The Romans learned the art of writing and received the alphabet from the Greeks of Cumae,¹ at a time not to be exactly defined. The oldest extant inscriptions date from about 300 B.C., but writing is certainly known to have been practised, though probably to a limited extent, long before that period.

the sign C being used exclusively for the sound g, and K always for the sound c. Then K went gradually out of use, and C was for a time used to designate both sounds, g and c. This being presently found inconvenient, a new sign, G, a modification of C, was invented for the g-sound, and received its place in the alphabet after F, in place of Z, which had been meanwhile given up as needless. So arose the new Roman alphabet, also of twenty-one letters,—

A B C (=c) D E F G (=g) H I K (seldom used) L M N O P Q R S T V X.

Chief Phonetic Peculiarities of Early Latin.

6. Diphthong ai for later ae: quaistor.

7. Diphthong oi for later oe: foidus.

8. Diphthong oi (oe) for later ū: oinos = ūnus.

9. Diphthong ei preserved. This diphthong had an important place in the earliest Latin sound-system, but we find it subject to decay even in our oldest monuments of written Latin, passing sometimes into ē, sometimes into ī; finally, in the 'classical' period, ī became its fixed representative. But meanwhile, after ei had assumed a simple sound, it came in turn to be used in place of ī in words where it was not etymologically justified; that is, where there never had been a real diphthong pronounced.

NOTE 1. The original ei seems first to have passed into a simple sound intermediate between ē and ī, so that both ē and ī were likely to be substituted for it in writing. Later this half-way sound gradually settled down into ī. Accordingly ei came to be looked on as a convenient graphical designation for the long i-sound, and was written indifferently for any ī, very seldom for ē.

NOTE 2. We thus distinguish two sorts of ei. (1.) The genuine diphthong which was once pronounced as such, so that the diphthongal spelling is etymologically justified. This is the case for instance in root-syllables as strengthening of i, as deico (dīc-), feidus (fid-), like λείπω (λίπ-); and in the dative singular of the third declension, virtutei; also in the nominative, dative, and ablative plural of the second declension, virei, doneis (where it stands for still older oi), and in the dative and ablative plural of the first declension, vieis (where it stands for older ai); so, too, in the pronouns heic and quei, in sei 'if'; and in other words. This genuine ei is found in the earliest inscriptions. (2.) The spurious ei, never pronounced as a diphthong, but merely written in place of ī. It is unknown in the earlier inscriptions, but frequent from about the Gracchan period (620/134) on. Examples are ameicus, audeire; the accusative plural and ablative singular of i-stems, as omneis, fontei; the infinitive passive, as darei; also the genitive singular of the second declension, as populei;¹ and the perfect indicative, fecci, posedeit. In tibei, sibei, ibei, ubei, nobeis, vobeis, utei, the diphthongal spelling reaches further back, and may be well founded, though it is difficult to account for it etymologically.

10. Diphthong ou, in place of later \bar{u} : douco, Loucina.

NOTE. This diphthong is almost always a strengthening of u in root-syllables; douco (dūc-) as $\phi\acute{\epsilon}\upsilon\gamma\omega$ ($\phi\upsilon\gamma-$). The very oldest Latin would appear to have had in some cases eu for this: see n. 157 a. Very rarely ou appears as a mere graphical sign for \bar{u} .

11. The earliest Latin is thus seen to have had a complete system of six diphthongs, whose relations to the later vowel-system may be thus exhibited:—

EARLY LATIN.	CLASSICAL.
ai	_____ ae.
ei	_____ (\bar{e}) \bar{i} .
oi	_____ oe, \bar{u}.
au	_____ au, \bar{o}.
eu	_____ eu.
ou	_____ \bar{u} .

12. \check{o} for later \check{u} : as consol, opos; and (less frequently) \check{e} for later \check{i} : as soledus, oppedum.

13. ov for later u: sovos (suos), pover (puer).

14. The studious avoidance of the successions uu and vu, by retaining older uo, vo (or by using c for qu), as servos, sequontur (or secuntur), etc., is not peculiar to early Latin, but was the almost unvarying usage until after the Augustan epoch. But the early Latin avoided ii and ji no less carefully. The genitive singular of stems in -io- is invariably contracted, consilī. The nominative, dative, and ablative plural of the same, are very seldom contracted, but as a rule are written -iei and -ieis; and just so perfects like petiū appear always as petiei, petieit, except when they are contracted, as obit for obiit. In these cases, ei represents the sound midway between ē and ī, not a pure ī. Such forms as filiū, filīus, petiū are quite foreign to the language of this period. The compounds of iacio avoid ji by dropping j: abicio; and stems in -jo- and -jā- make, for example, genitive Gāi, dative plural Pompēis, Bāis.

15. The absence of the aspirates, ch, th, ph. The older language had for them simple c, t, p. Even in Greek words, χ, θ, φ are represented by the simple 'smooth' mute: Corintus.

NOTE. The aspiration begins to creep in at a pretty early period in isolated words: triumpho (n. 98, 145 B.C.), pulcher (102 B.C.), lumpha (n. 116).

16. Preservation of older s for later r: only in isolated forms anterior to our earliest inscriptions: meliose = *melio*rem.

The following peculiarities must be regarded as partly graphical.

17. Omission of final s: Cornelio^s. This occurs chiefly in the very oldest inscriptions.

NOTE. Yet final s must have had for long afterwards a weak sound, as it is sometimes neglected in versification by all the pre-Augustan poets.

18. Final t is rarely left off in the very oldest monuments: dede^t.

19. Omission of final m: pocolo^m. It had always in Latin a slight and obscure sound, and is frequently neglected in writing in the older inscriptions. Later — say after 200 B.C. — it is much more constantly written.

20. Omission of n before s: cēsor, cōsol. In this situation n had only a slight sound, but it nasalized and lengthened the preceding vowel.

The following are merely graphical peculiarities.

21. Double consonants were written single until after 200 B.C.; eset, Marcus; and for more than a hundred years later the usage is variable; but it must not be inferred that they were pronounced as single consonants.

22. Doubling of vowels to indicate their length: aara. This was a temporary fashion, lasting from the time of the Gracchi (134 B.C.) to about 75 B.C. The vowels i and o are never doubled.

23. The use of q for c before vowel u: pequnia; and the more frequent use of k.

24. The writing of xs for x, as saxsum, belongs mostly to the Gracchan period.

25. Of the use of the sign C as g (see foot-note, p. 4), there are but scanty traces on existing coins and inscriptions, though we know from ample testimony that in earlier times it was so employed; namely, in the laws of the Twelve Tables. But soon after 300 B.C. the sign G was already in use. It is perhaps needless to say that, in the abbreviations C., Cn. (for Gaius, Gnaeus), the sign C is this old g. There were no such names as Caius, Cnaeus.

Chief Peculiarities of Early Latin Inflection.

A-stems.

26. Nominative singular with long \bar{a} : famā.
27. Genitive singular in $\bar{a}i$ (uncontracted): aquāi. Wag. Stud. p. 12
28. Genitive singular in $\bar{a}s$: terrās.
29. Genitive singular in $\bar{a}is$ ($\bar{a}es$): Prosepnaïs; in inscriptions only.
30. Ablative singular in $\bar{a}d$: praidād.

O-stems.

31. The endings -os and -om in nominative and accusative until shortly before the second Punic war—say about 520/234.

32. The endings -ios and -iom are rarely shortened to -is and -im: Clodis. These forms are provincial and plebeian.

33. Ablative singular in -ōd: poplicōd.

34. Nominative plural in -ēs, -eis, -īs: virēs, vireis.

35. Genitive plural in -ōm, ūm: Romanōm, sociūm.

NOTE. This is the older formation. It is not contracted from -ōrum.

36. Neuter plural nominative in long -ā: oppidā. So also the i-, u-, and consonant-stems: omniā, verberā.

Consonant and I-stems.

37. Genitive singular in -us, -es: Venerus, Apolenes.

38. Ablative singular in -īd, and in -ē: airīd, patrē.

NOTE. Older -ēd, for consonant-stems, is to be assumed, but is not well attested. The ablative -d, in these and in other stems, disappeared entirely soon after 200 B.C.

39. Nominative plural of i-stems rarely in -īs (or -eis). The accusative plural of the same in -īs (often spelt -eis) is, on the contrary, very common.

40. The early poets have sometimes -būs long in dative and ablative plural.

U-stems.

41. Genitive singular in -uos and -uis: senatuos.

42. Genitive singular in -ī: senatī.

43. Ablative singular in -ūd: magistratūd.

Forms of Pronouns.

44. The forms mēd, tēd, sēd, used as accusative as well as ablative: inter sēd.
45. Genitives mis and tis rarely in poets.
46. Forms tovos, sovos, for tuos, suos: cp. 13.
47. eis, nom. sing. eeis, eis, nom. pl. (cp. 34.)
ēiei, dat. sing. ēieis, eeis, dat. abl. pl.
im, em, acc. sing. ibus, dat. abl. pl. Lucr. 2, 88
48. hēc (for* heic) nom. sg. honc, acc. sing.
heic(e), loc. sing. heis(ce), hīs(ce), nom. pl.
hōius, gen. sing. (cp. 34.)
hoic(e), dat. sing. hībus, dat. abl. pl.
49. Forms ollus or olle, etc., for ille.
50. Demonstrative stem so-, sa-: accusatives sum, sam, sos, sas.
From this stem sei-c, sī-c is the locative.
51. quei, nom. sg. and pl. quōiei, quoi, dat. sing.
quōius, gen. sing. quēs, nom. pl. (cp. 34).

Verbal Forms.

52. Final -āt preserved long in present indic. (formed by contraction): versāt (Ennius).
present subjunctive: augeāt (Ter.).
imperfect indicative: ponebāt (Enn.). Also pluperfect indicative, but no old examples.
53. Final -ēt preserved long in present indic. (formed by contraction): habēt (Plaut.).
present subjunctive: dēt (Plaut.); also future indicative,
but no sure examples.
imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive: essēt, fuissēt (Enn.).

54. Final -īt preserved long in present indicative of i-conjugation (formed by contraction): scīt (Plaut.).

present subjunctive: sīt, velīt (Plaut.).

future indicative: erīt, venībīt (Plaut.).

perfect indicative: see below, 57.

55. Long ī in forms of perfect subjunctive and future perfect indicative: fuērīs, intulerīt, venerīmus, dederītis.

56. Infrequent and hard to explain is -īt in the present indicative of the third conjugation, as ponīt (Enn.).

57. The perfect indicative is peculiar; the following points should be noted: (1.) Perfects in -iī are invariably written with -iei- in the inscriptions, so far back as our knowledge goes: petiei, interieisti, redieit. For the reason, see above, 14. (2.) The third person singular of other perfects ends in the oldest inscriptions in -ēt and -īt indifferently; from the Gracchan period on in -eit and -īt. Its almost uniform length (more stubborn than that of other final syllables in -t) is attested by the poets. (3.) The third person plural has throughout the forms with and without -nt side by side: see note on n. 68.

58. Imperfect in -ībam for -iebam: scībam. The future in -bo has a more extended use than in later Latin: parībo, scībo.

59. Shorter future perfect in -so and perfect subjunctive in -sim: faxo, capsim, occīsīt; servassīt, habessīt.

60. Present subjunctives duim, duīs, duit, duint, 'give'; edim, etc., 'eat'; like sim and velim. Sim occurs in the older forms siem, siēs, siet, sient; and veliem*, duiem*, ediem*, are likewise to be assumed.

NOTE. These are old optatives: $(e)s\text{-}ie\text{-}m = \acute{e}(\sigma)\text{-}i\eta\text{-}v$; * $du\text{-}ie\text{-}m = \delta o\text{-}i\eta\text{-}v$.

61. Present subjunctives duam, duās, etc., 'give'; fuam, fuās, etc., 'be.'
62. Imperative singular active in -tōd: estōd. Very rare.
63. Imperative singular middle in -mino: praefamino = praefator.
64. Infinitive passive and middle in -ier: darier.

The Saturnian Verse.

65. Saturnian is the name given by the Romans to that form of verse most used by them in early times. It is an indigenous Italic metre, and before the introduction of the dactylic hexameter and other Greek metres, it received, at the hands of Andronicus and Naevius, some slight degree of literary culture.

66. Each verse consists of two tripodic series, separated by a caesura; both with trochaic close ($\underline{\text{L}} \text{U}$), and the first with anacrusis. The theses (ictus-syllables) are long, but may be resolved into two shorts. The interior arsēs and the anacrusis are either a long syllable, or a short, or two shorts; and the arsis before the last thesis of each series may be suppressed. The scheme accordingly is:

For examples see n. 74-77, 98, III, 137, etc.

67. A secondary form has the first series catalectic, but adds an anacrusis to the second. For an example, see n. 75 (b), v. 1.

68. Rarely tetrapodic series occur among the Saturnians. They are longer than the above by one syllable — an additional thesis at the end. For an instance see n. 75 (b), v. 6.

69. The Saturnian seems to be a development of a still older and ruder Italic verse-form, in which the most ancient carmina were conceived. Carmen means 'formula,' 'set form of words'; such in the earliest times were always in some sort of verse, however rude. This rhythmical character, before the art of writing was known, was all that gave such formulae any permanence, and preserved them from constant change. Accordingly we find that not only the prayers and proverbs, but the laws — or rather legal maxims — of this period, and the set forms of speech of political and religious life, are constantly spoken of as carmina. Of the outward form of this earliest poetry we can form some idea from such specimens as n. 153 flg. It is based on word-accent rather than on quantity, and is in this respect like English verse. The theses (ictus-syllables) are not necessarily long, but the accented syllable of every word, whether long or short, must stand as thesis. For the rest the general rhythm is not unlike the Saturnian, but the verse is more freely constructed, and syncopation (omission of the arsis) is much more frequent. The rhythmical divisions correspond in general with divisions of the sense. Each half-verse has four, rather than three, ictus; but when, as is usual, the two last are brought together by syncopation, the last does not receive much stress. See further the note on n. 153.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNS.

CI.: Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum. Vol. I., edidit Theod. Mommsen.

PLM.: Ritschl's Priscae Latinitatis Monumenta.

Eph. Epigr.: Ephemeris Epigraphica (supplement to the Corpus Inscriptionum).

In the text:

Italics indicate additions by conjecture; in the inscriptions they supply what has been broken off or effaced: as Cornelios.

Parentheses indicate the filling out of abbreviations: as pr(aetor).

Small final letters (as in omne^m) supply, for convenience in reading, consonants which have been neglected in writing because of their weak sound; see Introduction, 17-19. They are to be pronounced either not at all, or very slightly.

In the notes: a prefixed asterisk signifies a hypothetical form: dedant*.

Dates are given thus: 520/234; that is, 520 A.U.C. = 234 B.C.

1-18 selected from CI. 1-27. Coins, chiefly of the fifth century a.u.c., from Rome, Cora, Cosa, Alba, Cales, Suessa, Paestum, Beneventum, Aesernia, Teanum, Caiatia, Aquinum. The city is mostly indicated by the gentile name in the genitive plural; Romanom = Romanorum (Intro. 35), etc. But in 2 and 5 we have the city name in the nominative, and in 10 in the ablative ('from Beneventum').—Whether in Coza, Cozano, we have really the obsolete letter z, as most think, or merely a peculiar form of s (Mommsen, Münzwesen, p. 315), is uncertain.—What Prboum, etc., in 8 and 10 means, is not clear. It is usually taken as probum, 'sterling,' referring to the coin, but Mommsen disapproves this, not without reason.—In 12, 14, 16 we have the obsolete gentiles Aesernius, Tianus, Aquinus instead of the usual Aeserninus, Teanensis, Aquinas.—Volcanom in 13 is accusative singular: cp. n. 42, and note.— In 17 and 18 (coins of Luceria) we have the names of the duomviri who superintended the coining, in the nominative singular (Introd. 17). They are to be read Lucios Pullios Luci filios, Gaios Modios Gnaivi filios; Servios Postumios, Poplios (i.e., Publius) Babios. For Gnaivi = Gnaei, cp. n. 74 b.

19-45 = CI. 43-52, 54, 56-60, with additions from Eph. Epigr. 5-24, and Philologus, 37, p. 175. The vessels and works of art are mostly of Etruscan origin, and date somewhere from 350-200 B.C. The Latin language was rapidly spreading in Etruria. The pocola were sacred temple utensils; each bears the name of the god to which it belonged.— 19. Aecetia is as it were Aequitia* (= Aequitas), formed like iusstitia, duritia, etc.: c is for qu, and e is the o of stem aequō- not yet sunk quite into i. Whether in a genitive like this we are to read -āi (Introd. 27), or contracted ai (= ae), cannot be told.— 20. Belola: probably dialectic for Bellōna: the cup is ornamented with a head having snake-hair.— 21. A goddess Coera (= Cūra?) is not elsewhere known.— 22. Kerus means 'creator' (root as in cre-are), and in the Salian Hymns (n. 157) Janus was called 'duonus cerus,' but it is by no means certain that Janus is meant here.— 23. Laverna (root as in lu-crum, ἀπο-λαύ-ειν) was a goddess who is said to have enjoyed the special veneration of thieves.— 24. Saeturnus is an old form of Sāturnus, but the ae (or aē?) is hard to explain. The root is certainly sa-, 'sow.' Saturn was god of agriculture.— 25. Salutes: see Introd. 37.— 27. Aisclapius = Ἀσκληπίος, without the help-vowel used in the ordinary form Aesculapius. The diphthong in this name receives its elucidation from the dialectic Greek form Αἰσχλαπίω on a bronze statuette (Ann. dell' inst. arch. 1834, p. 223). pococolom is of course only a blunder.— 28. On a bronze bust of Medusa. Oufentina, sc. tribu. See Introd. 10. The designation of a man's tribe is added in the ablative. The tribe Ufentina was formed 436/318.

A similar one found at Caere has an almost identical inscription.— 31. One of three similar inscriptions on patellae. Retus, i.e., Rhetus. C. s. is probably Gai servos, i.e., Gai libertus. The slave Rhetus assumed at manumission his master's (C. Gabinius) gentilician name. Calebus for Calibus by what is probably a mere irregularity of spelling: cp. n. 75 b.; 104, l. 39.— 32. T. n. = Titi nepos.— 33. Eco: read ego; Introd. 25. Supply feci. This inscription is on the cover of a well.— 34. Inscription of the famous Cista Ficoriniana, found at Praeneste, with admirable engraved designs. Dindia— elsewhere a nomen gentilicium— seems here a feminine praenomen. Macolnia = Magulnia. Probably the c is meant as g, and we should pronounce Magolnia: Introd. 25. fileai and fecid are mere inaccuracies. Novios must be thought of as a freedman of the Plautian gens. med is accusative: Introd. 44. Romai: locative.

The following, from mirrors and cistae, are designations attached to the figures of the drawings. They are meant to be Latin, but some are tinged with foreign—doubtless Etruscan—peculiarities. Indeed I have omitted four of these, as quite too un-Latin; but I cite from them a few forms which are instructive as showing how Greek names were Italicized in early times: Aciles (Achilleus), Casentera (Casandra), Crisida (Chryseis), Teses (Theseus), Ateleta (Atalanta), Felena (Helena: probably Velena, Φελίνα, F being used as in Etruscan), Acmemeno (Agamemnon), Lavis (Laïs). An Amazon is marked Oinumama, i. e. unimamma, 'one-breasted.'— 35. Poumilionom = pūmilionum.— 36. Iovos is a strange nominative. Menerva is the regular old Latin form: root as in men-s. 1462. Mercuris: Introd. 32. — 37. Amucos = Amýcus (king in Bithynia). Polouces = Pollúces (Plaut.) from Πολυδεύκης: ou represents ev. Later shortened to Pollux. — 38. Telis is Thetis. Alcumena = Ἀλκμήνη, with a help-vowel, as always in Plautus. — 39. Luqorcos = the Doric Λυκώργος: c is of course to be read g. Pilonicos = Φιλόνεικος. — 40. Painiscos = Πάνισκος, diminutive of Πάν. The diphthong is singular: but cp. n. 27. Vibis = Vibios; Introd. 32. Philippus is a freedman of the Vibian gens. Note nom. in -us. — 41. Iovei, dative, is on a representation of an altar; so is a dedication, 'to Jove.' Hercele(s) is, however, nominative. — 42. We have here three cases: nominative, accusative, and genitive. The accusative in works of art is to be explained (according to Mommsen) by understanding vides. Cp. n. 13 and 44. The genitive supposes imago or some such word: it is common on Grecian vases. Diovem: see on n. 73. Prosepnais: Introd. 29. There is a dispute regarding this form of genitive, some (Ritschl, Bücheler) maintaining that it is a real ancient form (-ā-is = Sanskr. -ā-jās) which afterwards survived in the provincial -aes (see n. 145), others (Mommsen, Corssen) regarding all these as spurious grecizing genitives, in imitation of those in -ης. I incline to the former view. Prosepna without an r approaches Περσεφόνη very closely, and lends much color to the opinion that the name Proserpina is borrowed from the Greek. — 43. Vitoria is probably Victoria. Rit(us), a figure personifying the marriage-rite. So Mommsen. — 44. Mirqurios = Mercurius. Alixentrom = Alexandrum. — 45. Oinomavos = Οινόμαφος. Ario = Ἀρείων, a divine horse (Il. ψ 346). Melerpanta is Bellerophontes.

46-57. CI. 167 fig. At Pisaurum in Umbria, in a sacred grove. Date about 500/254-552/202 (Mommsen). Their language is provincial, and shows noteworthy phonetic corruptions. There is no final s, and most of the diphthongs are destroyed. — 47. Cesula = Caesulla, Diane = Dianae: the diphthong ae has passed into ē. — 48. Feronia is dative, with the final e clipped. Cp. n. 50, 55. For dede^t see Introd. 18 and 57 (2). The donor's name is Stadius Tettius. Feronia was a goddess of spring and flowers. — 49. Iunone, dative. The full ending ei, preserved in Apolenei (46), is replaced by ē here and in Matrē, Iunonē, Salutē (50, 53, 56): see Introd. 9. matrona is nom. plur. for matronai: the diphthong clipped as in the dative. dedrot = ded(e)ro(n)t. In n. 50 we have the same form without the t. — 50. Matrē Matuta, dative; matrona, nom. plur. Mater Matuta was an Italic dawn-goddess, who presided over childbirth. M' = Mania, Pōla = Paulla. Both are feminine praenomina. In early times women had praenomina as well as men. In old sepulchral inscriptions of Praeneste (CI. 74 fig.) we have Gaia, Lucia, Maria, and others. Cp. also n. 34 and 47. deda is thought to be for dedant*, a perfect 3d plur. of a primitive formation not elsewhere found; de-da-nt like (σ)έ-στα-ντι, ἔστασι. This is not certain. — 51. Fide, dative. — 52. Probably for Iuno(ne) Loucina(i), dative. Iuno Lūcina was goddess of childbirth. — 54. Lebro = Leibero; Introd. 9. In CI. 183 (provincial) we have vēcos for veicos, vīcus. Liber was an Italic vintage-god, afterwards identified with Dionysos. — 55. Datives. Marica: probably identical with Fauna and Bona Dea. See Hor. Od. iii. 17, 7. — 57. On the divi Novensides, see on n. 159. The case seems here dat. plur., -ēs for -eis. Popaio^s = Poppaeus.

58. CI. 40. A fragment. Perhaps the earliest instance of a doubled consonant. There were four Appii Claudii consuls in the 5th century a.u.c. Mommsen calls attention to the omission of Claudius, peculiar to this name. Appius itself is treated like a gentile: hence Via Appia, not Via Claudia.

67. CI. 185; Venusia. Decree of the (local) senate about a piece of ground. Along with this goes a fragment of a similar decree, from which locom is here supplied.—Malio^s, i.e., Mallius, Manlius.—senatu seems to be accusative, but what the following d means (there is a space between) no one knows.—consuluere: we might expect consoluere (cp. n. 82, l. 1), and in the fragment just mentioned we have consoltu.—poublicom: the older form is pōplicus; thence pūblicus, this being the earliest instance. This ou must be merely a sign for ū: it can hardly be a genuine diphthong. Introd. 10, note. Sacer and publicus are both opposed to privatus.

68. CI. 187. Va(lesi): from this praenomen (Valesus) comes the gentile Valerius. parti^m: this older accusative was afterwards fixed as an adverb. Apolenes, genitive: 'properly belonging to Apollo.' Compare the pars Herculanea, note on n. 99. dederi: irregularity for dedere. Observe the gradual crumbling away, as it were, of this perfect 3d pl., dederont (dederunt), ded(e)rot, ded(e)ro, dedere, dederi.—69. CI. 190. -misio: part of some unknown surname of Mars. C. l. = Gai libertus. libens meritod: a frequent dedicatory formula; 'gives freely in return for benefits received.'—70. CI. 166. homo (so Mommsen) here = servos or libertus. If this is right, the names preceded; 'Eros Marci homo' or something similar. The freed slave left a gift for the household. The inscription is on a vase. In fameliai we have a transitional form between familia and the original form famol-ia* (from famolus).

Suppl. iii. p. 1; Cales. Apolone: cp. n. 65. — 73. PLM. Suppl. ii. p. 12. The meaning is uncertain. castud facitud seems best taken, with Ritschl, as ablative absolute, facitud being perhaps dialectic for factod. Castus is a season of fasting. Diovis is the older form of Iovis: see n. 42 and 96: Diove also occurs in a fragment, CI. 188. Compare Ζεύς, for *Διεύς. It does not appear whether Diovis belongs with the following or preceding words. Iunone Loucinai is, of course, dative.

74. CI. 29, 30. This and the following epitaphs were found in the family tomb of the Scipios, near the Appian Way, outside the ancient Porta Capena, where excavations were made in the 17th and 18th centuries. They are preserved in the Vatican Museum. — Inscription a is painted only, on the upper margin of a sarcophagus; b is cut on the side of the same. The latter is in its forms (nom. in -us) less archaic than the former, or even than the next epitaph — that of the son. Hence it is all but certain that only the painted inscription dates from the time of the burial, and that the other was cut a good many years (at least 50) later. The subject of the epitaph, the great-grandfather of Scipio Africanus the elder, was consul 456/298, and censor 464/290. The campaign mentioned took place during his consulship, in the third Samnite war.

For the Saturnian metre of this and the three following epitaphs, see Introd. 65 fig. — Lucius: the praenomen is put after the nomen, for metrical convenience. Lūcius apparently, with long i; so also in the next epitaph. This would seem to have been the earlier pronunciation. Observe that we do not have Loucius*, though we might expect it, as the root is the same as in Loucina, Loucetius (namely, luc-, 'shine'); and the Oscan has Luvkis. — Gnaivod = Gnaeo. The name Gnaivos — later Gnaeus — is the same as (g)naevos, 'mole,' 'birth-mark': from it comes Naevius. — patrē: with long ē; Introd. 38. — formā: long ā in the nominative; Introd. 26. So also parisumā = parissima. The above scansion of this line seems to me the only right one: pārissumā has the i short, not because one s is written, for that is merely graphical, but by the now well-known Plautinian usage which allows a long syllable to be used as short in certain positions; namely, (1) when it follows a short ictus-syllable (∪ — = ∪ ∪), and (2) when it stands between a preceding short syllable and a following ictus (∪ — ∪ = ∪ ∪ ∪). It is true that an interior syllable of a word is seldom affected in this way, but cp. simillūmaē, Asin. 241; dēdissē, Pseud. 990. — fūit (v. 3) with long ū; not infrequent in old Latin (Plautus, Ennius). — censōr: the original quantity, as in censōris. — fuīt (v. 4): see Introd. 57 (2). — Taurasia and Cisauna are towns in Samnium; the former referred to by Livy, xl. 38, the latter quite unknown. Samnio Ritschl takes as accusative, but Mommsen as ablative, saying, not without force, that it is strange to mention two unimportant places and then say that he took the whole country. As ablative it would mean ex Samnio partitively, rather than in Samnio; but we miss the final d (cp. Gnaivod). — subigīt: Introd. 56. Yet we might read subīgīt. — Loucanam (sc. terram) for Lucaniam. — opsides: ob appears as op regularly in early Latin in composition before a surd consonant. Not assimilation: op is the older form; Oscan op, Umbrian up, Greek ἐπι. — abdoucīt: Introd. 10, note. Observe the change of tense: cepit, subigīt, abdoucīt.

75. Cl. 31, 32. Inscription a is painted, b is cut. One slab is missing, so some of the verses are incomplete: the supplements are Ritschl's (except that of v. 1). This Scipio, son of the preceding, was consul 495/259 and fought in the first Punic war, and was censor 496/258. — aidiles: a nominative like nubēs, volpēs, canēs (Plaut.): these were more numerous in early times. But see the usual form below in b, v. 4. — cōsol, cēsor: Introd. 20. So cōsentient below. — Honc oino^m ploirume = hunc ūnum plūrimi. Introd. 48 and 8. The ē in plourumē is for ei, Introd. 9. — duonorom: duonus and duellum are the older forms of bonus, bellum. On the form of these first two verses see Introd. 67. — Lucíom as in n. 74. — híc, but in the next verse hēc: both stand for heic; Introd. 9 and 48. — fuét like dedet, etc.; Introd. 57 (2). — cepit Corsicā^m: during his consulship. Aleria being the principal town of Corsica, its capture deserves separate mention. I think this verse complete on the stone. The only trouble is with the scanning Alèrid (Alèpia, Ptolemy). But can Ptolemy's spelling be final proof of the pronunciation at Rome of ā foreign name more than three centuries earlier? Moreover even the short ē might perhaps be defended here: see on v. 4 of the next epitaph. The hiatus -que urb- is quite admissible in this kind of poetry: see v. 2, duonórom ópt-. Ritschl added pugnandod, scanning the verse without any dividing caesura.—dedet Temp.: for the tetrapodic half-verse see Introd. 68.—-ebus for -ibus is only an irregularity. This temple of the Tempestates (weather divinities) stood near the Porta Capena: it was vowed at a time when the fleet was near being shipwrecked: Ovid, Fast. vi. 193.—merētod: older for merito (Introd. 12), not infrequent.

76. CI. 33. Probably the son of Scipio Africanus major, and the adoptive father of Africanus minor. His infirm health is mentioned by Cicero, Cat. maj. xi., and elsewhere. Mommsen puts his life about 550/204-590/164. Evidences of a later date, as compared with the two foregoing epitaphs, are: essent with doubled s, ablative without d (longa, vita, Publio), útier not oitier.—apice^m: the flamen Dialis, chief priest of Jupiter, wore an apex or wooden spike on his cap.—insigne^m: the omitted m does not count in scanning: this is unusual.—omniā: Introd. 36.—brévia: the penultimate long syllable of the Saturnian series is particularly often resolved: so ingénium, grémium, récipít below.—famá, nominative. Introd. 26: so again terrā below.—quibus, etc. This verse, as usually scanned, lacks the caesura between the series. I suspect, however, that the true division is: quibús sei in longá licuísét tibe útier víta. It seems namely from several instances as if an accented short syllable might stand instead of a long one as thesis (ictus-syllable) at the head of the second member. Cp. n. 98, v. 3, 158, 209, 214. If this be so, it is a survival of the older Italic accent-versification: Introd. 69.—sei: the diphthong justified: Oscan svai, Greek (σφ)ει.—tibē for tibei: Introd. 9, note 2.—utier: Introd. 64. For the scansion útiēr vi- see note on parisuma, n. 74, v. 3, and compare pūtēr vénit, Terence Phorm. 601.—fácilē, not faciled: see on facilumed, n. 82, l. 27.—factéis: Introd. 9, note 2.—Scipio, Publí, Cornéli are vocatives, but prognatum looks back to te. Altogether they represent the full name of the deceased, P. Cornelius P. f. Scipio.

77. CI. 34. An unknown Scipio. Judging by annos (double n), sít (not siet) and the lack of ablative -d, it cannot be very old; and probably is not far from the age of n. 76. — Cn. n. = Gnaei nepos. — quóm is the preposition cum. The form occurs repeatedly in inscriptions; for instance in a fragment, CI. 532; and oína quom = únā cum in the Lex agraria, CI. 200, l. 21. — posidét: Introd. 53. — saxsum: Introd. 24. — quoiei: Introd. 51: again in Lex repet., CI. 198, and Lex agrar., CI. 200. The pronoun refers to the person implied in the preceding lines. — vitā: again ā in nominative. — honos honore^m: there is a play on the different meanings of honos; 'in whose case life, not repute, fell short of preferment'; that is, he did not live long enough to hold any office. — híc might have been heic (i.e., ho-i-c(e)*), locative from stem ho-). — virtutei is ablative, for virtutū: the ei is the spurious diphthong: Introd. 9, Note 2. Stems in -tūt- were originally i-stems. — locéis: Mommsen's conjecture; 'resting-place,' 'tomb.' Ritschl conjectured Diteist, i.e., Ditei est, but this does not accord so well with the indications of the stone. Other suggestions have been made. — ne quairátis, etc.: 'ask not what office he held, since none was intrusted to him.' quairátis seems to be the scanning intended, but in spite of this indication (which is quite isolated) it is extremely doubtful whether the personal ending -tis was ever really long. — mínūs sít: Introd. 17, note.

78. CI. 35. Nephew of Africanus major: quaestor 587/167, mentioned by Livy, xlv. 44. — Pater: Scipio Asiaticus, or Asiagenus, defeated Antiochus 564/190. — Antioco^m: Introd. 15. — The date of this inscription cannot be far from 594/160.

79. Cn. Cornelius Cn. f. Scipio Hispanus, pr(aetor), aid(ilis) cur(ulis), q(uaestor), tr(ibunus) mil(itaris) II, Xvir sl(iti- bus) iudik(andis), Xvir sacr(is) fac(iundis).

79. CI. 38. Son of the first Scipio Hispallus, or Hispanus as it is here called, who was first cousin to Africanus major. His praetorship was in 615/139.—II: probably iterum, 'twice.'—Xvir, etc.: the decemviri slitibus iudicandis, called earlier iudices decemviri, were magistrates whose exact functions are little understood, but they had to act as judges in certain cases. Slis and slis are older forms of lis. The decemviri (later quindecimviri) sacris faciundis had the care of the Sibylline books.—The verses are elegiac.—mieis (pronounced here mjeis) = meis: the e of me sinks to i before e, to avoid the succession e-e. So iei, ieis (but eī, eīs). The vocative mī is contracted from mie*. These dissimilations show that ei was not yet pronounced as ī, at least in this situation.—progeniem genui: the stone has progenie mi genui, but I think, with Ritschl, that the i is simply "alicui casui vel errori tribuenda."—petiei, 'have striven to equal,' 'emulated.' On the spelling, Introd. 57.—optenui: see on opsides, n. 74, v. 6.—sibi must be scanned sībī. It is merely the retention of the former spelling after the later pronunciation had set in. Cp. tibi, n. 99, v. 1.—honor: but honor in n. 76 and 77. The meaning is: 'the offices I held increased the family renown.'

80. Eph. Epigr. 2, 198. Found at Luceria in Apulia. The Latin is provincial.—hoc: see on haice, n. 82, l. 22.—loucarid: ablative of lūcar, which has here the meaning of lūcus.—stircus = stercus.—fundatid is for fundato(d) (Introd. 62), imperative of fundāre, which is oddly enough used in the sense of fundēre. The imperative ending -tōd appears in this inscription in three forms, (1) -tōd in estōd, licētōd, (2) -tād in proiectād, (3) -tid in fundātid, parentātid, i.e., apparently in the first conjugation. The last two forms are otherwise unheard of. — proiectad = proicito. The compounds of iacio had in old Latin sometimes -iecio, in place of the classical -icio. So conieciant, CI. 198, l. 50 (Lex repet.). — parentatid = parentato. Parentatio would defile the grove, because it had to do with the dead. — arvorsum = advorsum. — hac: perhaps neut. plur.: see on post hac, n. 82, l. 13. Or possibly ablative sing. feminine: see on arvorsum ead, n. 82, l. 25. — faxit: Introd. 59. — ium = eum. — quis = quisquis, an ancient use. Cp. n. 175 and 208. The antecedent ei is understood. 'Let any one who chooses lay hands on him, as for a judgment rendered of . . . sesterces.' — manum iniectio: the right of seizing the person to compel payment of money due: cp. n. 179. For manum (contracted from manuom, gen. plur.) cp. passum, Plaut. Men. 178. — pro iouicatod: i.e., as if a claim had been adjudged by a magistrate. — numum I: Mommsen conjectures L, i.e., 'sestertium quiquaginta milia'; Bruns CIO, 'sestertium mille.' — magisteratus: cp. n. 65. More original form, with comparative suffix -ter-. — moltare = multare: cp. n. 66.

81. CI. 5041. Hasta (elsewhere Asta), near Gades, in Spain: bronze plate, found 1867. The maker of the decree is the famous Aemilius Paullus, afterwards Macedonicus; the date 565/189. Note the doubled consonants and ablatives without d. — inpeirator is simply a blunder, as ei has no business to stand for a short e; decrevit is less strange: Introd. 9, note 1, end. There was a late Latin form decr̄ivit. — utei: Introd. 9, note 2. — servei: the turris Lascutana is a castellum, or outlying dependent community, composed of slaves of the Hastenses. They had probably done the Roman general some service against their masters. — leiberei: the oldest form had oi (loebesum = liberum in Festus); leiber is frequent. — iouisit = iussit. The spelling with single s (even iūsiit) is very persistent in this perfect. — dum: 'as long as.' — poplus: from this shorter form (also Plautinian) come poplicus, Popli-cola, Poplius (Publius). — Observe that in poplus senatusque the usual order of the words is reversed.

82. CI. 196. S.C. de Bacchanalibus. Bronze plate, found 1640 at Tiriolo in Bruttii; now in Vienna. In 568/186 a secret orgiastic worship of Bacchus had established itself at Rome and spread to many parts of Italy. The excesses committed at these nocturnal assemblies were so frightful, and the secret organizations of the initiated became so powerful, that not only public morality but the very state itself seemed endangered. For particulars see Livy, xxxix. 8, fig. The senate passed a stringent decree for the suppression of these rites. This decree was communicated to the allied states of Italy, and the above inscription is a letter from the consuls, embodying the substance of it, sent into the 'ager Teuranus' in Bruttii, and there cut, according to directions (line 26), on a 'tabola athena.'—This important and instructive monument is more archaic than the foregoing inscription (n. 81), which is three years earlier. In public documents old-fashioned forms would naturally be adhered to. There are no doubled consonants, and the ablative d appears everywhere: ai and oi are used throughout (except aedem, l. 1). But on the other hand we have -us, -um, not -os, -om.

Lines 1-4. S. = Spurius; cos. = consules.—Duelonai = Bellonae: see on duonoro, n. 75.—sc(ri) bendo arf(uerunt): decrees of the senate were reduced to writing after, not before, they were passed; and a committee of senators remained after adjournment to see that they were correctly written down. These were said scribendo adesse.—arfuerunt = adfuerunt: the preposition has the same form as in ar-biter. Cp. arvorsum, arfuisse, l. 24, 25.—qui foederatei esent: supply as antecedent eis. 'Regarding the Bacchanalia it was resolved to give the following directions to those who are in alliance with us.'—exdeicendum = edicendum.—Neiquis: the particle nē appears in early inscriptions in three forms, nē, nei, nī (the last retained in nī-mirum).—habuisse: for the tense see Allen and Greenough's Grammar, 288 d, Remark; Gildersleeve's Grammar, 275, 2.

—quēs: nom. plur.; so eeis, just below. Introd. 47, 51. —necesus (not elsewhere found) is clearly used here as neuter, but seems to have been originally a nominative masculine, which having lost its other cases, was no longer felt as such: necessum (Plaut.) is the neuter to it.

Lines 5–9. senatoribus: only a blunder, as senatoribus stands l. 9 and 18. —Bacas = Bacchas. These rites belonged properly to women only: the admission of men to participation in them had been the chief source of lawlessness. Liv. xxxix. 13. —adiese = adiisse: and so adiesent = adiissent, just below, and adieset, l. 17. As to the nature of these forms, Corssen thinks them actual dissimilations to avoid the succession i-i. But those who think the pluperfect subjunctive and perfect infinitive compounded with essem and esse respectively (as the pluperfect indicative is with eram: see Allen and Greenough, 118, foot-note) will find in them rather the retention of an older sound: cp. Introd. 14. —nominus: Introd. 37. —Latini (cp. urbani, l. 21): the genitive singular has simple -i, whereas the nominative plural (virei, oinuorsei, l. 19, 20) has -ei. This is the usage of the older monuments: cp. n. 24, 26, 27, etc., and Barbati, n. 75. Not until later does -ei in genitive appear; see n. 99, l. 4. The nomen Latinum comprised at this time those cities of Latium which enjoyed a sort of half citizenship, and were so intermediate between cives and socii. —socium: gen. plur.: Introd. 35. —senatuos: Introd. 41. —iousiset: 'shall have given leave.' —Censuere: 'Carried.'

Lines 10–14. nequis vir: that is, women only can hold this priesthood. —magister: an officer (not a priest) to manage the temporal affairs of the organization. So magistratum below: 'no one shall appoint either man or woman to be master nor to act as master.' The guilds are to be entirely broken up: hence the prohibition to have pecunia comoinis. —comoinem = communem: Introd. 8. —quisquam = quisquam. —post hac: usually written posthac. As in ante hac, hac is probably the old neuter plural for haec.—inter sed: Introd. 44.—comvovisse: com- before v is singular; but compare comvalem, n. 104, l. 8.—conpromississe = compromississe. The oldest perfect of mitto seems to be meissi (promississet, Cl. 205); so ē here is probably for ei.

Lines 15-19. oquoltod = occulto.—poplicod = publico.—extrad: again l. 28; cp. suprad, l. 21, 24, 29. The adverbs ext(e)rā, int(e)rā, sup(e)rā, inf(e)rā are ablatives feminine.—iouiset: here and l. 9 the plate reads iouisent,—a blunder.—Homines is awkwardly put in a sort of apposition to quisquam: 'that no one in a company of more than five persons altogether, men and women,' etc.—oinorsei = universi. To be divided oinu-orsei (for oinu-vorsei*): the first part of the compound as in oinu-mama (see p. 17, near bottom), acru-folius. Omission of v as in de-orsum (de-vorsum*), sursu-orsum (n. 104, l. 14). Others read this form oinvorsei in three syllables. Lucretius (iv. 262) has unorsum, contracted like dorsum for deorsum.

Lines 20-24. inter ibei (interibi): 'there,' 'in that company.' i-bi, locative of i-s, is joined with the preposition inter. So in-ibi, post-ibi (Plautus).—For mulieribus we should expect mulieres; but he says 'men not more than two, nor more than three women.'—arfuisse = adfuisse.—Haice: fuller form for haec. The appended -c in hi-c, hō-c, hun-c, etc., often appears in its complete form -ce. The spellings hicce, huncce, etc., are barbarous.—utei . . . exdeicatis: subjunctive of command, usually preceded by an imperative, facite or videte. Cp. Plaut. Capt. III.—in coventionid = in contione: Introd. 38.—ne minus trinum noundinum: 'for not less than three market-days.' See lexicon, s.v. nundinum. Noundinum = noven-di-num*, 'period of nine days.'—scientes esetis = sciretis. Such circumscriptions with the present participle are rare: Cic. Cat. maj. 8, sit . . . agens aliquid.—quēs: as l. 3.—arvorsum ead . . . quam: 'contrary to the way in which,' 'contrary to what': ead seems to be the adverb eā (ablative feminine), joined to arvorsum in a way not otherwise known, and answered by quam, 'how.' It is omitted in Plaut. Trin. 175: utrum indicare me ei thensaurum aequom fuit, advorsum quam eius opsecravisset pater? Cp. also Plaut. Most. 4, 2, 66: nihil . . . prae quam alios . . . sumptus facit, 'compared to the way in which.'

Lines 25-30. rem capitalem: 'a proceeding for a capital offense.' Capital punishment, with the Romans, signified either death or loss of civic rights (capitis deminutio).—uteique . . . ioubeatis (ioubere = later iūbere) seems to be a return to the direct command as l. 22.—figier: Introd. 64.—ubei facilumed gnoscier potisit: 'where it can be easiest read.' The adverbs in -ē were originally ablatives, and so have -d properly. With (g)nosco in the sense 'read,' compare ἀναγιγνώσκω. Potisit = possit: for potis sit.—extrad quam sei, etc.: 'except in case there be concerned in the matter something sacred'; fuller expressed by Livy (xxxix. 18): "extra quam si qua ibi vetusta ara aut signum consecratum esset." The senate were anxious not to interfere with any established and legitimate worship.—ita utei suprad, etc., belongs with dismota.—in diebus X quibus: 'within ten days after—,' a regular expression: see Gildersleeve, § 400, Rem. 3, end, and cp. Ter. Andr. 104, in diebus paucis quibus haec acta sunt.—dismota = dimota.—sient: Introd. 60.—In agro Teurano was simply the direction to the letter-carrier. It is no part of the document, and lacks the ablative -d.

Not later than 600/154 (Mommsen). Tullius = Tullius. praitores: the local magistrates. aes Martium is money derived from the sale of booty: a share of booty from some campaign had fallen to the Corani as socii. emeru stands immediately for emerut: cp. dedro, dedrot, n. 49, 50; also note on n. 68.—90, 91. CI. 1200, 1201. Capua. Iunone Loucina Tuscolana = Iunoni Lucinae Tusculanae: for the dative in -a see on n. 48. Palē: like Iunonē, and Victorē (n. 83). Pales was a goddess of herdsmen. sacra in both inscriptions refers to the altar (ara) on which each stands. The Tusculan worship was transplanted to Capua by colonists. See on n. 107.

92. CI. 807. On different sides of an altar at Bovillae, near Alba, the cradle of the Julian gens, where the family rites were kept up even in imperial times.—Vediovei: Vediovis or Veiovis was an Italic divinity of some importance, represented as Apollo-like, with arrows in his hand; but not much is known about him.—genteiles Iuliei: i.e., members of the Julian gens. The spelling genteiles (cp. aidilis, n. 74, 75, etc.) proves that the inscription cannot be older than the time of the Gracchi: the ei is quite unjustified etymologically: see Introd. 9, note 2.—aara, leege: Introd. 22.—leege Albana = more Albano: 'according to Alban ritual.' The restoration Iulei is uncertain, but if right it is nominative plural (cp. n. 104, l. 23).

93. CI. 808. On an urn, in ancient letters. The form Mavors = Mars is well known.—94. CI. 814. The corniscæ divae, 'crow-goddesses' attendant on Juno, had, we know, a sanctuary 'trans Tiberim,' and in that neighborhood this stone was found. Devas Corniscas must be dative plural, of a form otherwise unknown. It would seem to be a contraction directly from the original -ā-is. The ē in dēvas stands for ei, cp. n. 57: Introd. 9.—95. CI. 562. Delphi. Perhaps the same Q. Minucius who made the decision for the Genuates (n. 104) 637/117. Putio = Pythio.—96. CI. 1435. Found near Padua. Cp. n. 42 and 73. The givers are women of the gens Tampiai.—97. CI. 1434. Found in Southern Tyrol. C. R. is explained civis Romana, but Mommsen conjectures C. f. = Gai filia. The following signs are also of doubtful meaning. Maxuma means, of course, the eldest daughter.

98. CI. 541. Rome. Mummius took Corinth 608/146, and triumphed the following year. The inscription is in rather rough Saturnians, with a tetrapodic series (v. 3), and a half-verse (also tetrapodic) standing alone at the end. Corinto; but triumphans with ph, one of the earliest instances of an aspirate in Latin. Observe that Corinthus is here made masculine (or perhaps Corinthum, neuter), feminine town-names in -us being as yet strange to the Romans. — With redieit compare petiei, n. 79: the succession i-i is thus avoided: -ei in the perfect after a consonant is less common, and is not found till later. — quód seems to stand as short thesis; see on n. 76, v. 4. But Ritschl supplies quód is, and it is barely possible that is has been broken off the edge (quod comes at the end of a line). — aedem et: for the hiatus see n. 75 (ð), v. 2 and 5.

99. CI. 542. Reate: now lost, and the transcription faulty. A tithe (decuma = decima) of the booty is here dedicated to Hercules, according to a common custom. This was the pars Herculeana of spoils or any unusual gain. The verses are hexameters. — The vocatives Sancte and Victor address Hercules. — tibi must be read tibi: see on sibi, n. 79. Both in Lucius and Mummius the final s does not count in scanning. — promiserat is Mommsen's conjecture for pro usura, which leaves a hiatus, confuses the construction, and gives very little sense. — visum, etc.: 'he has fulfilled the choice of his heart.'—suo and tua are monosyllables.—cogendei, etc. The general sense is: 'begging thee under favor to enable him fully to collect and fairly to divide the spoil,' so that the god may have his just due. facilia is explained as facultatem, but is certainly corrupt. In cogendei and dissolvendei we have the earliest instances of -ei in genitive singular; see on n. 82, l. 7, Latini.—A decuma verae rationis is a tithe fairly computed: ratio in its book-keeping sense.

100. CI. 55r. Found at Forum Popili (modern Polla) in northern Lucania. The name of the magistrate at the beginning is lacking, but there is no doubt that it was as above. P. Popilius Laenas was consul 622/132. The road described, from Regium to Capua, was a continuation of the Via Appia, and may well have borne the name Via Popilia. The inscription contains several spurious ei's; feci, poseivei, conquasivei, redidei, ponteis omneis (but aedis in last line), meilia, fugiteivos, probably eidem (= īdem). On the other hand the spelling heic is justified.—Regio: Regium, not Rhegium, is the genuine Latin form of this name.—miliarios, sc. lapides; elsewhere always miliaria, neuter.—tabelarios: what? Hardly letter-carriers, as usual. Perhaps tabellarios lapides, such for instance as the stone bearing this very inscription, which is certainly more than an ordinary milestone.—poseivei = posivi (Plautus), later posui. Pōno (for po-sino) is a compound of sino with the obsolete preposition por- (pos-, po-), and so posivi is its regular perfect.—For the following towns see map. Nuceria and Capua are in one direction, Muranum and the rest in the other. To Capua the distance is 84 miles.—∟: the older sign for 50; L is seldom found before Augustus's time.—Cosentia = Consentia; Valentia = Vibo Valentia, formerly Hipponium; ad fretum ad statuum; the place called Columna Regina, at the narrowest part of the strait, the usual place of crossing to Sicily.—Suma = summa, 'the whole distance.'—af: this old preposition, noticed by Cicero, Orat. xlvii., occurs about seven times in inscriptions, before c, v, l, m, s. Corssen thinks it an entirely distinct preposition from ab.—praetor in Sicilia: some years before. The outbreak of the servile war in Sicily (620/134) was preceded by extensive brigandage on the part of half-fed slaves of large land-holders. This brigandage Popilius tried to repress.—Italicorum: see n. 86.—de agro poplico: the reference is to the enforcement of the agrarian law of the previous year (621/133), by compelling those who occupied too much public land for grazing purposes (paastores) to give up a part of it to tillers (aratoribus).—forum: here a mere place of business, constructed by the builder of the road for the aid of traffic, like the forum Appi on the Via Appia.

101. CI. 548, b. One of three similar stones found in the Euganean hills, near Padua. Perhaps the L. Caecilius Metellus who was consul 612/142 (Mommsen).—senati: this genitive occurs pretty frequently in inscriptions from this period on, and similar ones (quaesti, etc.) are freely used by Plautus, Ennius, and others. It probably arose merely from confusion with the o-stems.—102. CI. 554. Near Aeclanum in Samnium. Date 624/130. Folvius = Fulvius; Paperius = Papirius. This spelling again in Lex agraria, CI. 200.—III vire a. i. a. = tres viri agris iudicandis adsignandis, commissioners for executing the agrarian law: virē for virēi, Introd. 9.

103. CI. 197. Fragment of a bronze plate, found at Bantia in Lucania. On one side is a part of a law in the Oscan language referring to local affairs of Bantia; on the other side the above portion of a law in Latin. What the relation of the latter to the Oscan law is, or whether it has any thing at all to do with it, cannot be with certainty made out. The part of the Latin law preserved is from near the end, and treats only of the so-called sanctions: what the purport of the law was we do not know. But as the magistrates mentioned are clearly the Roman magistrates, we have evidently a Roman, not a Bantine, document. Mommsen thinks the enactment to have been of the nature of a foedus, a law making or changing a treaty with Bantia. The only thing that can be made out concerning the body of the law is that it provided for the annual election of a iudex of some kind. The date is certainly between 621/133 and 636/118: see on l. 7. The beginning of each line is gone, but the supplements are tolerably certain.—The tenor of the fragment is as follows:—

(1.) Lines 1-6: Civil and political disabilities to attach to curule magistrates as a penalty for violating the law.

(2.) Lines 7-13: Fines imposed on lesser magistrates and on senators for violations of the law.

(3.) Lines 14-22: An oath of obedience to the law is prescribed for all magistrates.

(4.) Lines 23-32: A similar oath is prescribed for senators.

Lines 1-6. in poplico ioudicio: this includes both the nearly obsolete iudicium populi before the comitia (tributa or centuriata) and public trials before iudices (jurymen). The offender is debarred the privilege of sitting in the senate, and of acting as one of the iudices at a trial; he must not be asked his sententia in the one, nor be given a tabella (to vote with) at the other.—ne: see on neiquis, n. 82, l. 3. All three forms, nē, nei, nū (l. 20), occur in this document.—In testimonium we have apparently i changed to u through influence of a following labial; labials being fond of u: testi-monium seems the proper form, from testi-s.—deicito, etc.: testimonium dicere is to give testimony, testimonium deferre to permit one to testify, testimonium denuntiare to summon one as a witness.—denontiari: cp. nontiatā, n. 105, l. 5, and pronontiato, Lex repet. CI. 198, l. 42. Both nōntius* and nūntius are contracted from noventius* ('new-comer').—recuperatorem: recuperatores were a special kind of judges or jurymen, who were appointed, instead of ordinary iudices, to decide certain classes of suits, primarily those in which international relations were involved, as claims for money between Romans and peregrini: the matter is, however, not fully understood. A iudex may be public (belonging to one of the regularly constituted boards) or private (appointed by the magistrate for a particular private suit). An arbiter is appointed by a magistrate to settle involved affairs (claims and counter-claims) where there is no direct and sharply defined issue between the parties.—in poplico luuci (Introd.

22): lux is masculine in old Latin; Plaut. Aul. 741. But more likely the meaning is 'in public in the daytime'; cp. l. 17 and 24.—soleas: the red shoes (mullei) are meant, which, like the praetexta, distinguished the curule magistrates.—queiquomque = quicumque.—concilium: the comitia tributa seem to be meant, which are often called concilium plebis.

Lines 7, 8. triumvir capitalis: these were police magistrates who had charge of arrests, prisons, and executions.—triumvir agreis, etc.: for carrying out the agrarian laws. Such magistrates existed only 621/133–636/118.—qui ex hace, etc.: these words refer only to ioudex: the judge to be appointed by the provisions of the present law.—lege plebeive scito: the enactment is worded as if it were uncertain whether it would be passed at the rogation of a curule magistrate by either comitia (lex) or at that of a tribune by the comitia tributa (plebei scitum). Both were equally binding.—Join quo . . minus fiant.—oportuerit (future perfect) oportebitve: simply legal fulness; fecerit following, as well as fecerit gesseritve above, is of course the future perfect indicative.—dolo malo: the ancient legal phrase.

Lines 9–13. multa tanta esto Mommsen supplies from the Oscan law: others damnas esto dare.—pecuniam: Introd. 23.—qui petet: multam petere is to propose the infliction of a fine where a fine of definite amount is prescribed by statute: the petitor can be a private person. 'If the proposer of the fine demands, the praetor shall appoint recuperatores . . . and shall give directions (to the recuperatores) that in case the offense is proved, he shall be condemned (to pay the fine) to the people, and shall see that judgment is pronounced on him.' The object of having recourse to the board of recuperatores is to insure the prompt collection of the fine. — pariat = pareat, an unusual corruption. Pāret is in this formula equivalent to appāret. — condumnari; but just below condemnatus: condumno is not elsewhere found. — quanti: genitive of value. — praedes: praes, praed-is is for praeves, prae-vīd-is (CI. 200, l. 46), compounded of prae and vas, vād-is. — Sei quis magistratus, etc.: 'If any magistrate choose to propose a greater fine than the above, whoever shall thus choose may do so, provided it amount to less than half the man's property, and to him (i.e., this magistrate) the law shall apply in every respect just as if he had exacted, in accordance with this law, only the amount prescribed above.' A magistrate was said multam inrogare when he imposed a fine greater than that prescribed by law; in that case the offender had the right of appeal, and the matter was brought before the comitia tributa. — dum . . taxsat (later written as one word): 'provided it reaches' or 'touches'; taxāre, for tactāre*, is a frequentative from tangere (root tag-). Its construction with the genitive is surprising, and reminds one of the genitive after verbs of touching in Greek. We should expect the accusative. — partus: Introd. 37: cp. Castorus, l. 17. Pars is here treated quite as a consonant-stem (part-), though it was originally an i-stem (parti-). — familias: gen. sing. — omnium rerum: 'in all respects.' For this old use of the genitive Wordsworth aptly compares the formula eius hac lege nihil rogatur, 'regarding that nothing is proposed by this law' (CI. 200, l. 34). — siremps (in prol. Plaut. Amph. 73, sirempse): 'just so.' The etymology is probably sī rem eampse, 'thus in very fact'; sī being sī-c without its c, and rem eampse accusative of specification. For eampse see Plaut. Cist. 172. (Corssen's explanation is slightly different.) — quasei sei: pleonastic for simple quasei, as in n. 106, I. l. 40, II. l. 4, and generally in legal phraseology: cp. prol. Plaut. Cas. 46. Analogous to nisi si, which is quite common. The spellings quasei and nisei are regular in inscriptions of this time, though the poets, even Plautus and Ennius, measure always quāsī, nīsī.

Lines 14-16. qui nunc est: i.e., those now in office. Future magistrates are provided for in the next sentence.— For quibus, 'after,' see on n. 82, l. 29.— populum plebemve: populus is either comitia under a curule magistrate, plebs the comitia tributa under a tribune.— plebi: contracted from plebēi: see above, l. 7.— eis: nom. plur.: Introd. 47.— Lines 17-19. in forum vorsus: vorsus is a sort of petrified nomin. sing. masc., as it were, which came to be used for different cases and numbers. Consult lexicon (versus) for further examples.— in diebus V seems rather out of place here, but apparently only one oath is indicated, before the quaestor in front of the temple of Castor, which was at the foot of the Palatine. Three columns and the substructions of this temple still remain. For the senators, however, the aerarium (l. 24) is indicated as the place of swearing: this was in the temple of Saturn, at the other end of the forum. Of this temple also considerable remains (from a later restoration) still exist.— neque intercesurum: intercessio was the right of the tribunes.

Genua and the Langenses Viturii, a castellum (see on servei, n. 81) or tributary community of theirs. The Roman senate had sent the two brothers Minucius to settle the dispute, who after their return to Rome rendered the above decision.—The Viturii hold two kinds of land: (1) ager privatus held in their own right: for this no tax is to be paid; and (2) a portion of public lands, ager poplicus, belonging to Genua; for the use of this a gross sum is to be paid yearly, which is to be assessed upon all the holders pro portione, including any Genuates who may hold there (l. 25-32). Common pasture-lands (ager compascuos, l. 33)—presumably those within the limits of the above tract of public land—are to be open to any Genuan or Viturian. The meadows (prata, l. 37-42) which form part of this public land, are reserved for the sole use of the Viturii, but their extent is not to be increased.—The spelling of the document is rather inconsistent. Prepositions are frequently written as proclitics; thus inre, l. 2; adterminum, l. 13; but this has not been followed in the text. The names of streams and mountains are Ligurian.

Lines 1-5. Minucieis and Rufeis are nominative plural; Introd. 34. 'Quintus and Marcus Minucius Rufus, sons of Quintus,'—Genuateis = Genuatīs: ei simply a sign for ī. Gentile names in -ās, -ātis (Arpinās, etc.) are originally i-stems (old nom. Arpinātī-s), and have properly the accusative plural in -īs.—in re praesente: technical phrase; 'on the spot'; cp. Liv. xliii. 23, praeter agrum de quo ante legati ab Roma, qui in re praesenti cognoscerent, missi essent, etc., also xxxiv. 62, xl. 17 and 29.—controversias: r lost before s as in sūsum (l. 7) for sursum, rūsum for rursum; so also prōsa oratio for prorsa, and tostus for tors-tus* (torreo).—composeverunt: see on poseivei, n. 100.—qua lege: 'on what terms.'—fineis (after qua): nomin. plur. Introd. 39. Three cases occur in this inscription.—facere . . . statui: the change from active to passive is awkward.—terminos: 'boundary-stones.'—senati: see n. 101.—Qua: 'where.'—eos vendere . . . licet: the accusative and infinitive with licet is not confined to early Latin.—heredemque sequi: quem agrum has to be repeated as subject. An inheritance is said sequi heredem, 'to pass to the heir.'

Lines 6-8. vectigal = vectigalis: -is has dropped off, as in vigil for vigili-s. But Momms. writes vectigal(is). — Langatium: the Langates or Langenses are the same as the Viturii, as appears from l. 24, etc. As the above two forms, so also Genuates and Genuenses are here used indifferently. — fontei: ei for i. — Mannicelo: probably a hill; one in the neighborhood is now called Maniceno. — ad flovium E.: 'at the river E.' The starting-point is the mouth of the brook, where it flows into the Edus. Flovius is the earlier form for fluvius. The combination uv is not so studiously avoided as vu, uu, yet the earlier language shows a dislike of it. See fluio just below. — suso vorsum = sursuorsum (l. 14) = sursumvorsum (l. 15; Cato R. R. 33): equivalent to simple sursum (the expression is pleonastic, for sursum is itself sub-vorsum*): flivio suso vorsum = 'up the river' (Edus). Ablative of the road by which (Allen and Greenough, 258 g; Roby's Gramm. 1176; Gildersleeve, 387) further defined by an adverb. — comvalem: see on comvovise, n. 82, l. 14. — termina: from termin (= terminus), a form noticed by Varro Ling. Lat., v. 21. — circum viam Postumiam: the road from Genua northward to Dertona, not elsewhere called by this name. Probably a stone on each side of the road is meant, as l. 11.

Lines 9-11. rivo^m Vend.: m omitted, as l. 14, 20, contrary to the usage of this period. — dorsum = deorsum (i.e. de-vorsum*): contracted like prorsum (pro-vorsum*). — fluio: uv is avoided by omitting v. — Procoberam: called below Porcobera (l. 22), and by Pliny (hist. nat. iii. 5, 48) Porcifera; the modern name is Polcevera. — flivio Procobera: the plate has Procoberam; a blunder of the graver. — infumum = infimum. — sursum rivo recto : 'straight up the brook.' — Lines 12-15. en is the older form for in, as endo for indu, but it is surprising to find it in an inscription of this age. — Agri poplici is of course partitive genitive with quod. — hisce : nom. plur. Introd. 48. — confluent : this is the only case of com- before f, and spellings like in fronte (CI. 1104) are exceedingly rare. — Edus : but accus. Edem and ablat. Ede (l. 7, 13, 14). — sursumvorsum iugo recto, etc. : 'straight up the ridge of the mountain L.'

Lines 17-19. quei : the usual attraction into gender of the predicate-noun. — vocitatust = vocitatus est. — Ioventionem : a summit in the neighborhood is now called Giovo delle Reste ; a brook near it, la Gioventina. — in montem Apeninum : Apeninus is here appellative ; 'that summit of the Apennine chain, which is called Boplo.' — Apeninum iugo recto : Apeninum is possibly genitive plural, but more likely a mistake for Apenino. — in flovium Veragl. etc. : 'to the river V., at the foot of the mountain B.' Cp. l. 12. — Lines 21-23. Blustiemelus seems to be a hill. — Eni- seca: the stream near which the tablet was found is called la Secca. — flodium: note the ending -om, exceptional at this time. — conflovent = confluunt. The present flou-o is formed with the same strengthening of the root (flu-) which we have in douc-o (dūc-). It is analogous to Greek presents like ῥέω, older ῥέϝω, from root ῥυ-. Probably not only fluo, but ruo, cluo, etc., formed their presents originally in the same way. — flodi: contraction of -ii, older -iei, in nominative plural is rare in inscriptions and almost unknown in literary Latin. Introd. 14. Other instances are filei, socci (CI. 1274, 1041).

Lines 24-27. frui takes the accusative in old Latin, as Plaut. Asin. 918. Cp. l. 34. — Veituris: nom. plur., contracted from -ieis; so again, l. 35, but Vituris, l. 37 and 42. — Genuam: accusative of place whither, used after in poplicum by a sort of attraction; 'into the public treasury at Genua.' — victoriatos nummos: these were equal to the Massilian drachmae. As these last were common currency in the Po region and Liguria, the Romans had coins of the same value struck for that country, which were called victoriatii. In value 4 victoriatii = 3 denarii. Mommsen, Röm. Münzwesen, p. 389 fig. — arbitratuu: as Mucio, l. 5, 29. 'In the judgment of the G.' — quod: 'so far as,' 'provided that.' — setius: the only correct spelling for what has been vulgarly written secius. According to Corsen's very probable etymology, sētius stands for seg-tius*, comparative of a seg-tus* = segnis; so the word would mean properly 'slower.' Cp. quo minus setiusve fiat, Lex repet. CI. 198, l. 70. — vicensumam = vicesimam. All numerals in -ēsimum have lost an n before the s.

Lines 28-32. posedet and posedeit are perfects: Introd. 57 (2).—eorum repeats in thought the omitted antecedent of the first qui. Out of all former holders, those who held at a certain date are to continue in possession.—ita = item.—Eis: nom. plur.: Introd. 47. The meaning of the unskilfully expressed sentence is that the old holders are to contribute their portion of the tax as well as new-comers.—niquis: see on n. 82, l. 3; so nive below.—maiore parte: read maioris partis, and so again in the next sentence: it is another mistake (of the graver?):—mitat = mittat. The landholder is not to send in any tenant or laborer who is not either Genuan or Viturian.—Veiturium (after Langensium) is of course genitive plural.—parebit = apparebit: 'shall not appear to conform to the above requirements.'—frumino: Introd. 63. Cp. n. 174. In origin, this form is the nominative of an old participle in -minos, with esto understood: sequimino(s) = ἐπόμενος ἔστω, as it were.

Lines 34, 35. ligna materiamque: 'firewood and timber.'—utantur: utor, like fruor, takes the accusative regularly in early Latin.—Ianuaris: stems in -io- have in the older inscriptions their dative and ablative plural regularly in -ieis, seldom in -is or -eis contracted (but see controversis below, l. 45; cp. oficeis, CI. 1050), never in -iis. Introd. 14.—Veturis: see l. 25. Vēt- for Veit- or Vit-.

Lines 37-39. proxuma faenisicei: 'last hay-time.' We have apparently the ablative of a feminine faenisex, in meaning equivalent to faensicia. Faenisex masculine means 'mower.' Faenum is the correct spelling, not fēnum nor foenum. — Odiates, etc.: other communities, sustaining to Genua the same relation as the Langenses Viturii. Odiates and Dectunines are of the third declension, Cavaturineis and Mentovines seem to be of the second (= Cavaturini, Mentovini), as their ablatives just below end in -ēs (for -eis). With Dectuninebus cp. Tempestatebus, n. 75, l. 6. — quem quisque eorum, etc.: 'as touching that land which they shall severally possess.' The whole clause means what we should express by the simple word 'respectively.' — Lines 40-42. sicut and sicare below: for secet, secare, 'cut.' A provincialism not elsewhere found. Cp. sica. — pascat: 'use for grazing.' Cp. Verg. Aen., xi. 319. — Langueses = Langenses: n omitted, gu for g. — inmittere: 'let grow.'

Lines 43, 44. controversias . . . iudicati aut damnati, 'tried or condemned in dispute'; a free use of the inner or 'cognate' accusative, somewhat analogous to the expressions vincere iudicium, sponsionem (Cicero). — solvi, etc.: -ei in infinitive passive is not etymologically justified, and occurs only after the time of the Gracchi. Earlier monuments have -ī (or -ier).

— Genuenses: object of oportere. We have here the construction oportet me aliquid fieri, 'it behoves me that something be done,' but I do not know a parallel case. Oportet is for op-portet*, 'falls to my share' (from an obsolete portēre*), and so its taking a direct object is not surprising.— Lines 45, 46. ad nos: the commissioners named below.— primo quoque die: 'at the earliest possible day.'— controversis: see on l. 35. The following words were hopelessly confused by the graver, who could not understand his copy. The sense requires something like controversis abstineant (Mommson).— Meticanio and Pelianio are probably nominatives of o-stems with -s omitted. Observe the relation, in these Ligurian names, between the surnames in -anio-s and the fathers' names in -ono-s. The surnames would seem to be hardly more than patronymics formed with suffix -io-, such for instance as the Boeotians had; 'Ἀπολλοδώριος = son of Ἀπολλόδωρος. In fact, a large part of the Roman gentilicia had a like origin, Tullius from Tullus, Quintius from Quintus.

105. CI. 201. Bronze plate found at Tibur, now lost. The Tiburtines had fallen under some suspicion (of what offense we do not know), and had sent to Rome to clear themselves before the senate, upon which this decree was passed. This is all that can be made out. The age of the inscription is uncertain: from its spelling it would seem to belong not very far either side of 654/100. The document, like the S.C. de Bacchanalibus (n. 82), is not strictly a decree, but a letter from the praetor embodying the substance of the decree.— For the opening forms see n. 82.— Lines 1, 2. Kastorus: Introd. 37; cp. n. 103, l. 17.— S. = Spuri.— Line 3. Quod introducing a matter for remark, or the occasion for the following remark (Allen and Greenough, 333 a) is continued by quibus in the same function: 'whereas . . . and whereas concerning certain matters,' etc.— Lines 4, 5. animum advortit: later joined, animadvertit. — nontiata:

5 Nosque ea ita audiveramus, ut vos deixistis vobeis nontiata

Cp. oetantur = ūtantur, Lex agr., CI. 200, l. 11, and oeti = ūti, CI. 603.—Line 11. eieis: this form is interesting as preserving the pronoun-stem eio-, older form of eo-; this stem arises from i- (i-s, i-d) by diphthongal strengthening and addition of o.—af vobeis: cp. af Capua, n. 100, and note.—Quonque = quomque. Quom causal takes indicative in early Latin, as Plaut. 106. CI. 202. Bronze plate found at Rome in the ruins of the temple of Saturn (see on n. 103, line 17), which was the regular place of deposit for state archives. It is the eighth of a series of nine or ten tablets, on which was engraved a law of Sulla: the rest are lost. It contains two pages or columns. The tablets were nailed up in a horizontal row, and the praescriptio, or heading, ran along the tops of all of them in large letters: of this only four words (principium fuit: pro tribu) are on the preserved plate. The whole, as we know from other documents (in particular the Lex Quinctia de aquae ductibus in Frontinus), must have read about as follows: L. Cornelius L. f. Sulla dictator de senatus sententia populum iure rogavit populusque iure scivit in foro . . . (here followed the exact place and the date) . . . Tribus Sergia principium fuit; pro tribu P. Terentius P. f. Varro primus scivit; whereby the names of the tribe and the first voter aerarium provinciam optinebit eam pecuniam ei scribae scribeisque heredive eius solvito, idque ei sine fraude sua are of course merely inserted by way of example. In the comitia tributa, the tribe which voted first (or, according to Mommsen, that which first announced the result of its vote) was called principium. The present enactment, although passed in the comitia tributa, is still a lex, because passed at the rogation of a curule magistrate (dictator). If proposed by a tribune, it would be a plebis scitum, and the praescriptio would have plebem, plebes, instead of populum, populus.

The law is one of Sulla's enactments during his dictatorship (Tac. Ann., xi. 22) and so falls in all probability in the year 673/81. It raised the number of quaestors to twenty. The part preserved treats only of the attendants (apparitores) of the city-quaestors, and provides (1) for the payment of the scribae, and (2) for the appointment of additional viatores and praecones: the quaestors namely are hereafter to appoint four viatores and four praecones, where before they appointed three, and for the next three years the present consuls are to appoint additional viatores and praecones,—one each for each year. But this matter is involved in some obscurity, and there are two possible ways of understanding the arrangement. The viatores who serve for any one year form a so-called decuria, and so too the praecones. Now the simplest supposition is that these decuriae had heretofore consisted of three men each, and were appointed by the quaestors once in three years only, nine men being appointed, three for each of the succeeding years; thus the quaestors for 673 would have appointed three viatores for 674, three for 675, and three for 676. The quaestors for 676 would then by this law appoint four for each of the following three years. But meanwhile, that the decuriae may be immediately increased, the consuls are directed to appoint one supplementary viator each for 674, 675, 676. But Mommsen thinks, with some reason, that the arrangement was probably a little more complicated. The decuriae, according to his view, had consisted of nine men, and are hereafter to consist of twelve. One third of the decuriae for the three succeeding years are appointed by the quaestors of each year: namely, three (hereafter four) men in each decuria; so that the decuria for any one year contains appointees of the three preceding years. Thus the viatores during the transitional period would be as follows:—

Decuria for 674.

And the same for the praecoens. It is to be observed that the same men could be, and usually were, chosen for successive years, so that the office was practically a permanent one.

Page I. Lines 1-5. quei aerarium provinciam, etc., 'who shall have the treasury as his department,' i.e., 'shall be charged with the administration of the treasury.' There were two quaestores urbani, both of whom, so far as we know, had equally charge of the aerarium, so that it does not seem as if a particular one were meant here. In the Lex repetundarum, CI. 198, l. 79, we have quoi aerarium vel urbana provincia obvenerit, as if the two were pretty much the same thing. — mercedem deferto: 'report the amount of wages due.' Subject is the magistrate: see below, ii. l. 40. — sine fraude sua: 'without prejudice to himself.' — quod: as n. 104, l. 26. Evidently the quaestors of the present year had already made their appointments for the succeeding years; hence the supplementary appointments are left to the consuls.

very unlike the expression coeptus sum amari.—Line 41. intra caulas: 'inside the railing,' surrounding the temple or the aerarium. The names are to be hung there on the wall close to the copy of the law itself. Mommsen fills out the sentence as above; the law went on to direct the payment, as in I., l. 2, fig.—The reader will have noticed in the above document, the latest which has been admitted into this collection, (1) the greater regularity of spelling: thus -eis always in dat. and abl. plur., -ei in nom. plur. of o-stems (but -i in gen. sing.), -eis (for -is) in acc. plur. of i-stems (but -ēs in nom. plur.), etc.; only dat. sing. praeconei, but heredi, quaestori; and -i, -ei interchangeably in infin. pass.: (2) the closer approximation to 'classic' usage: ei dat. sing. of is, eis dat. pl., ei nom. plur. (iei once); lex (not lexs); hac lege, hanc legem (not hace hance); doubled consonants everywhere, etc.

107. CI. 565. Capua. Date 646/108.—The political condition of Campania during the 150 years from the Hannibalic war to the year of Caesar's consulship (695/59) was peculiar. The whole country belonged to the Romans as ager publicus, and was let to plebeian holders, and the government was administered by praefecti sent from Rome. The communities, pagi, have certain local officers, magistri pagi. Inside the pagi there exist guilds or collegia, some of ingenui, others of libertini, others of slaves. The collegia are named partly from their tutelary divinities, partly from their handicraft. They seem to exist chiefly for religious purposes, but they stand in some organic relation to the pagus. At the head of each collegium stand twelve officers called magistri (to be distinguished from the magistri pagi); but in the collegia of slaves they are called ministri. These officers, in return

I select three from among a number of similar extant inscriptions relating to these guilds.—N. = Numerius.—Heisce magistris: nomin. plur., Introd. 48, 34.—Venerus: Introd. 37. Venus Iovia is the goddess of the collegium. Iovia is not elsewhere known as surname of Venus. It designates the goddess as standing in some relation to Jove. Compare Here Martea (Preller, Röm. Mythologie, p. 303) and the Umbrian Çerfus Martius.—coiraverunt = cūraverunt.—loidos = lūdos.

108. CI. 566. Capua. Date 648/106. The collegium (Ceres) is one of libertini, whereas the former one (Venus Iovia) was of ingenui.—N. M. l. (3d line) = Numeri et Marci libertus. Freedmen and slaves of two masters (brothers) occur often in these and other inscriptions. So just below P. Stadius P. M. l., and in the next inscription *T. Sulpicius P. 109. CI. 571. Herculaneum apparently; but the stone was first known near Caserta. Date 660/94. The collegium—one of libertini—seems to be called after Iovius Compāgus, god of 'union' or 'brotherhood,' a name not known elsewhere. The community have voted that the officers of the guild expend their money in public repairs rather than on games. — Terminalia: 'landmark-feast,' the 23d of February. So Cicero writes to Atticus (vi. 1): Accepi tuas litteras a. d. quintum Terminalia (i. e. 19th Febr.). The reason of this mode of dating is that before Caesar's calendar reform, the month of February in every alternate year ended on the Terminalia: the remaining five days were omitted, and in their place was inserted the mensis intercalaris of 27 or 28 days. Accordingly after the ides of February they reckoned forward, in those years, first to the kalendae intercalares (but sometimes, as here, to the Terminalia), then to the intercalary nones and ides successively, and then finally to the calends of March. — lege pagana: the same as a pagi scitum. — arbitratu: 'oversight,' 'management.' — pagei: the stone has pageiei. — teatro: Introd. 15. — tam quaei sei: unusual fulness of expression; tamquam si and quasi si (see on n. 103, l. 12) are common. — Protemus, a singular name, occurs again CI. 943. — Dio-pantus = Διόπαντος.

found, and Festus gives us the form sispitem. According to Corsen, the z (ei) is due merely to the assimilating influence of the following syllable.

111. CI. 1175. Sora. Two brothers, Marcus and Publius Vertuleius, fulfil a vow made by their father. On the custom of dedicating a tenth to Hercules, see 99 and note. The inscription is of about the time of the Gracchi. The verses are Saturnians.—Vertuleieis : nom. plur. (Introd. 34), so too leibereis below.—re ('property') depends on difeidens (= diffidens).—affeicta = afflicta. Hiatus before this word, and again in the next verse.—heic : 'here,' at the shrine where the offering is made.—poloucta = pollucta. The old verb pol-lucēre belonged to sacrificial language: Plaut. Stich. 233; ut decumam partem si Herculi polluceam. Facere decumam is to set aside the tenth part; pollucere is to present it; but with special reference to a sacrificial feast: cp. n. 154.—dānunt = dant: frequent in Plautus, who has also dānit. They are isolated forms of a present dā-no*, formed like li-no, cer-no. The following also occur: explēnunt (= explent), nequinunt (= nequēunt, Liv. Andr.), redīnunt (= redeunt, Ennius), prodīnunt, obīnunt, ferīnunt (= feriunt), inserīnuntur (= inseruntur, Liv. Andr.), solīno, solīnunt (= con-sulo, con-sulunt). It will be seen that they are nearly confined to the 3d pers. plur.—Hercolei: cp. n. 83. On the fuller ending of this verse, see Introd. 68.—mereto in such dedications is usually ablative (see n. 69, 75, end), but seems here and in n. 112 to be dative.—semol = simul. 'Withal they pray thee to hold them often to payment of their vows.' Condemnare (or damnare) voti is to condemn a man to pay his vow, by granting his request. Allen and Greenough, 220 a.

112. CI. 1290. Found near ancient Amiternum. For the supplements cp. n. 99 and 111.—tovam: Introd. 46; tovos and sovos correspond exactly to the Epic Greek τέος (τερός) and έός (σερός).—adiouta: 'aid him who . . ' etc.

Λευκίου νίδς νύμφαις. Lumphia is a derivative from lumpha, which is itself used for a fountain-goddess. The oldest form was no doubt lumpha* (cp.
Oscan diumpais, dat. plur.), whence limp-idus. For the ph see Introd. 15, note. The spelling lympfa later in vogue was a Grecian affectation. The word has, of course, no etymological connexion with νύμφη.

calecandam (coiravit) : 'the plastering of the town-hall.' The brickwork was covered with stucco. The verb calecare or calicare (not elsewhere found except in Festus, who gives calicata) is from calx, 'lime.'

Basilicae (the name derived from the βασιλική στοά at Athens) were large roofed halls commonly not enclosed by walls, but with double rows of columns forming aisles (porticus) on either side: they were used for courts of justice and general business.—lacum balnearium: merely a tank in the public baths. Balineum (βαλανεῖον) is the older form for balneum: Greek ā weakened to ī, as in māchīna (μᾶχανά), trufīna (τροφάνη), and other borrowed words.—Aquam = aquae ductum.—arduom: the hill of the arx.—fornices: to support the aqueduct.—fistulas soledas: 'strong water-pipes.' The form solēdus (Introd. 12) is parallel to timēdus in a fragment of Naevius, but these happen to be the only instances of what was once the form of nearly all the adjectives in -idus: for instance, morbēdus* from still older morbō-dus*.—stipendia . . . iousit: i.e., exempted him from military service ('decreed that his campaigns be considered as already served').—Censorino: 'to him under the title of Censorinus.'

Novem(bres) occurs repeatedly. On Anavis, Caecilis see Introd. 32. On the eidus interkalares see note on Terminalia, n. 109. Licnia = Licinia. Protarcus (132) (i.e. -chus) is a state-slave (publicus servus). Ter(etina) (133), sc. tribu. (Not Terentina.) The form ossiva (= ossa) is strange. The stem ossu-, nomin. plur. ossua, is well known (see n. 140), and ossiva corresponds so exactly to ὄστῆα (= ὄστῆρα) that one may dimly suspect a stem ossivo-* = ὄστῆφο-. The Portunalia (135) or feast of the harbor-god Portunus was xvi kal. Sept.

138. CI. 1007. Rome; now lost. Iambic trimeters. — pellige = perlege. — hau for haud is frequent in the mss. of Plautus and Terence, and is now freely replaced in the text (as Trin. 233). — pulcraí: pulcer (polcer, CI. 552) is the usual spelling down to Cicero's time. Still it was one of the very few words in which a secondary aspiration fixed itself at an early time: pulcher occurs on a coin of about 650/104. — mareitum: ei merely for i, not justified. Maritus is participle from a supposed verb marire*. — sovo: see on 136. — horunc (horum-ce) is Plautinian (Cist. 53). — allium: for alterum. — incessu commodo: 'of gentle mien' or 'bearing.' — lanam fecit: Ov. Met. vi. 30, tibi fama petatur inter mortales facienda maxima lanae: cp. lani-ficus.

139. CI. 1194. A stone, now lost, found near Minturnae. Above are five names of libertini — father, mother, two sons, and the wife of one of the sons. To the last one the verses refer. She is a freedwoman of her husband's parents. — Neicia = Νικίας. — O. l. = mulieris liberta, freedwoman of the matron of the Saufeian family. So again P. O. l., 'freedwoman of Publius and his wife.' \mathcal{O} stood originally for Gaia, a sort of generic name for a married woman; cp. the wedding-formula 'ubi tu Gaius ego Gaia.'—inveisa: ei is merely a sign for i.—fuí: pronounced as one syllable.—domineis senibus: 'my old master and mistress.'—huic: her husband.—decoraat: an interesting spelling, showing the traditional length of -át in the present: Introd. 52.—stola: the dress of a Roman matrona. He married her.—a pupula: 'from girlhood.'—fecit iudicium: 'pronounced judgment' on my life.—The verses are iambic trimeters.

140. CI. 1010. Rome.—Primae: the eldest daughter: cp. n. 97.—ossua: the nominative ossu is attested by a grammarian. The stem of os, gen. ossi-s, is ossi-. Both stems stand for osti-, ostu-. Cp. note on ossiva, n. 133.—Fortuna: read Fors, which the metre (iamb. trimeter) requires. The distich—very likely stock verses used commonly—was muddled by an ignorant stone-cutter. We saw a worse instance in n. 136.—proprium: 'lasting.' The givers are slaves or freedmen.

141. CI. 1011. Rome: the stone is now lost; it had figures of man and wife clasping hands. Only the wife is dead, but both figures are supposed to speak the verses under their respective names. They are freed slaves of the same master: Hermia ('Ερμίας) and Philematium are their Greek slave-names. The verses (elegiacs) are somewhat uncouth in expression.—meo praedita . . animo: 'mistress of my heart.'—veixsit: present

Later such genitives in -aes and -ēs occur with increasing frequency: they are almost entirely confined to proper names from the lower classes.—O. I. was explained n. 139.—Laudica is Laodica, Λαοδική.

146. CI. 1213. Capua. A cultrarius is an attendant of the priests, who slays the victims at sacrifices.—Menolavi = Menelai. The v is in place, as the oldest Greek form was Μενέλαφος. The spelling Menolaus occurs again CI. 1321; cp. Philotaerus = Φιλέταιρος, CI. 1042.

149. CI. 28. The Fratres Arvales were a sodalitas or religious brotherhood, of like sort with the Salii and Luperci, existing for the performance of specific acts of worship at a particular festival, at other times having no priestly functions. They were a self-perpetuating body of twelve, charged with conducting the festival of the so-called Dea Dia in May. This deity (identified by Preller with Acca Larentia) was a goddess of agriculture and growing corn. The above ancient prayer is on one of many tablets containing the records of the brotherhood under the emperors. They were found on the site of the grove and temple of the Dea Dia, five miles from Rome on the Via Campana; the present tablet in 1778. The prayer was sung by the brotherhood in the open air, accompanied by a solemn dance (tripodatio). It is in itself by far the most venerable specimen of Latin which we possess, but as our copy dates from 218 A.D., and as the carmen, handed down from an unknown antiquity by oral tradition, had doubtless become unintelligible to those who used it, it is impossible to say what alterations it had undergone, and we cannot by any means — interesting as it is — look on it as an uncorrupted monument of the early language. “Omnino,” says Mommsen, “carmen hoc ex ipsis collegii libellis a quadrataro exceptum non multo meliore condicione accepimus quam quae huius generis apud auctores leguntur.” Hence I have reserved it for this place. — Each verse, except the last, is thrice repeated on the stone, with a few minor variations, of which fers (for sins) once, pleoris (for pleores) twice, and furere (for fu fere) once, may be mentioned. The metre is a rude Saturnian, with two isolated half-verses (cp. n. 98).

Translation: ‘Help us Lares: and let not, O Mars, plague and destruction come upon the multitude. Be satiate, fierce Mars, Call ye, in turns, on all the Semones. Help us, Mars. Huzza!’

V. 1. enos = nos. The e- probably as in ἐ-μέ, ἐμοῦ; a prothetic strengthening element. — Lases = Lares. Similar cases of s preserved between two vowels, for later r, are asa, fesia, Spusius, Vetusius, maiosibus, pignosa, arbosem; mostly isolated words preserved by grammarians. Introd. 16. See also n. 157, end of note. The Lares were important gods to the Arvales, for the brotherhood traced its origin to Acca Larentia and her sons. — iuvate: Ritschl notes that iovate* was probably the original form. See on fluvius, n. 104, l. 7. — V. 2. neve: the metre requires rather neu. — luem, ruem: accusatives of lues, rues. The latter word (= ruina) is known to us only through an obscure gloss. Both may well have had originally long u. — Marmar, and below Marmor, mean Mars. Apparently a reduplicated form. — sins = sinas or sines. — pleores = plures; it stands for ple-iōs-es* = πλε-ίov-ες. It is to be pronounced as two syllables. For the scansion in pleōres see on n. 74 (b) v. 3. — V. 3. fu: imperative, ‘be’; from the same root as fu-i. — fēre: for the short thesis cp. note on 76, v. 4. — The words limen . . . berber have never yet been satisfactorily explained. Provisionally one might interpret with Preller: ‘enter thy temple (cross the threshold) and stay thy scourge:’ in that case berber would be for verber, and sta might be transitive as in praesta te virum. But this is after all unlikely. — V. 4. semunis = sēmōnēs. Corssen points out that semunis can be no old form, but only a corruption of later imperial times. Just who the semones are it is hard to say. Most, connecting the word with se-r-o, sē-men, think them gods of husbandry, standing in a special relation to the Arvals. Mommsen takes them as 'divinities' in general, explaining the name as se homines (old form homōnes), 'apart from men.'—advocapit = advocabitis: future in imperative sense. Or perhaps rather advocabite, an imperative formation corresponding to the tenses in -bam and -bo. The p for b is unexampled and probably due to a mere blunder. In this line the brothers seem to address each other.—cōnctos = cūnctos. Both contracted from co-iunctos*.—V. 6. Triumpe: Triumpe.

 Introd. 15.

150. CI. 195. On a stone of Parian marble found in the forum in 1566, now in the Palazzo dei Conservatori on the Capitol. C. Duilius defeated the Carthaginians in the famous sea-fight off Mylae, 494/260, and the columna rostrata in the forum was set up in commemoration of the event. The present inscription, which seems to be the one mentioned by Quintilian (i. 7, 12) as containing final d's, is beyond all doubt of a later date, cut in the time of the emperors. The only possible question is whether it be a copy, more or less modernized, of an older one, or was composed outright, in imitation of the old-fashioned language, by some antiquarian under Claudius. The latter is the view of Mommsen and Ritschl, and to it I heartily accede. What influences me is not so much the hyper-archaisms (macistratos, exfociont), nor the painful persistence of the ablative -d in forms where it is otherwise unknown, as rather the length of the document, its circumstantial, almost statistical, style, and its prose form. What sort of an inscription Duilius set up, if any, may be gathered from the Scipio-epitaphs and from the triumphal inscriptions in Saturnian form long after this time (see n. 217 fig.): it would have been brief, simple, and in Saturnians. We have then in this monument merely the work of a learned trifler: if the column had originally any inscription at all, it was one very different from this.—Line 1. Secestanos: read Segestanos. C appears throughout for g (leciones, macistratos, exfociont, pucnandod, ceset, Cartaciniensis), although the sign G was in use in Duilius's time.—exemet: so cepēt, ornavēt, l. 5, 7, Introd. 57 (2). He raised the siege of Segesta.—L. 2. maximos macistratos is of course nominative, as primos, l. 7. The whole Carth. army and their 'chief commander' retreat in broad daylight. Both macistratos and exfociont (= ecfugiunt) are impossible

The bracketed signs are partly gone.—L. 16. poplom: see on n. 81.

Lex Acilia repetundarum.

151. CI. 198. Date 631/123 or 632/122. I have omitted this document, as well as the Lex agraria, on account of its fragmentary condition and the amount of explanation needful to make the remnants intelligible. It is on eleven fragments of a bronze plate, along the entire length of which the lines ran. Accordingly we have only detached parts of sentences. Many forms of this inscription have been already noticed by way of illustration, but I will mention here a few other noteworthy ones.—attigat (l. 10): attigas in Plautus. One of the few remains of the Latin aorist: attigam is to attigam as $\lambda\acute{\iota}\pi\omega$ to $\lambda\acute{\epsilon}\iota\pi\omega$, or $\lambda\acute{\alpha}\beta\omega$ to $\lambda\alpha\mu\beta\acute{\alpha}\nu\omega$. Other aoristic forms are attūlat, evēnat, parentes (οἱ τεκόντες).—detōlerit (l. 21, 76) = detūlerit.—oppedeis (l. 31) = oppidis.—adessint (l. 63) = adsint or adfuertint; a formation like faxint: Introd. 59.—sed fraude (frude) sua (l. 64, 69) = sine fraude sua: see on n. 106, l. 4.—possitur (ubei de plano recte legi possitur, l. 66: the praetor is to post something 'where it can be properly read from the ground'), passive: so potestur, queatur (Lucr.), quitur (Caecil.), poteratur, etc., are known. Always with the passive infinitive.—eiei, dat. sing., occurs seven times.

Lex agraria.

152. CI. 200. Date 643/111. On the back of the same eleven fragments, and in the same incoherent state. Besides forms elsewhere spoken of, I note the following.—cavitum = cautum (l. 6).—oqumatum = occupatum (l. 25).—domneis (l. 27) = dominis.—sed fraude sua: as in n. 151.—moinicipieis (l. 31) = municipiis.—oppodum Chartago (l. 81) = oppidum Carthago (but Cartago, l. 89).—mercassitur (l. 71) = mercatus erit. Passive from mercassit: Introd. 59. So iussitur (Cato R. R. 14), faxitur in an old formula, n. 163, end.

PART II.
OLDEST REMAINS FROM LITERARY SOURCES.

Old Prayers from Cato de re rustica.

153. Mars pater te precor, quaesoque uti sies volens propitius mihi, domo, familiaeque nostrae.
Quoius rei ergo
5 agrum, terram, fundumque meum suovitaurlia circumagi iussi ;
uti tu morbos visos invisosque, viduertatem vastitudinemque
calamitates intemperiasque 10 prohibessis, defendas, averruncesque :

Respecting all the selections given in Part II., it must be said that little reliance can be placed on the antiquity of the text in detail. All of them have been more or less modernized in their grammatical forms in process of transmission to us, and in many cases it is clear that still more serious vicissitudes have befallen them.

153. Cato R. R. 141. Prayer to be used at the lustratio agri or ambarvalia, in the spring of the year. This is probably the best existing sample of a Roman carmen of the olden time. For its rhythmical form, see Introd. 69. It readily groups itself into verses and half-verses (of course no division of the sort is made in the mss.), and may be recited with four ictus in each half-verse (the last two ictus commonly being contiguous). Thus for example:—

quaésóque úti síes vólens própítíiús míhi dómó fámíliáéque nóstráé.

I have not thought it best to attempt an exact notation of each verse, partly because some may be read in more than one way, and partly because of uti fruges, frumenta, vineta virgultaque grandire beneque evenire siris :

 pastores pecuaque salva servassis, duisque bonam salutem valetudinemque
 15 mihi, domo, familiaeque nostrae.
 Harumce rerum ergo,
 fundi, terrae, agrique mei lustrandi, lustrique faciendi ergo, sic uti dixi,
 20 Mars pater, macte hisce lactentibus
 suovitautilibus immolandis esto.
 Eiusdem rei ergo,
 Mars pater, macte hisce lactentibus
 suovitautilibus immolandis esto.

the general uncertainty of the text. The reader will not fail to notice the frequent alliteration, no unimportant element of the verse. — V. 1. Mars: originally god of husbandry and rural life rather than of war. — V. 6. circumagi iussi: the suovitautilia are led in solemn procession thrice round the farm; then follows this prayer, after which the sacrifice takes place. Cato gives the formula for directing the head-servant to lead them around, beginning, 'Cum divis volentibus, quodque bene eveniat, mando tibi, Mani, uti illace suovitautilia fundum agrum terramque meam,' etc. — V. 8. viduertatem: 'barrenness,' occurs in Festus, p. 369; vastitudinem = vastitatem. — V. 9, 10. calamitates: in the earlier sense, 'damage to crops' by blight or hail. — prohibessis: Introd. 59. So servassis, v. 13. — averrunces: averruncare comes from averruncus, 'defender,' ἀποτρόπαιος; a title belonging especially to Mars. — V. 11. uti fruges: the mss. utique tu fruges. — V. 12. grandire: here intransitive, elsewhere always transitive. — bene: probably should be duene, and bonam, v. 14, duonam. — siris = siveris. — V. 14. duis: Introd. 60. — V. 20. macte . . . esto: 'be thou magnified (or glorified) by the offering of these sacrificial sucklings.' In this common phrase macte esto, macte is without much doubt an adverb: it is used even in the plural, macte virtute este (Liv. vii. 36, as now read). Macte esse is said like bene esse, pulcre esse (Plautus). It cannot be rationally explained as a vocative. — V. 21. suovitautilibus comes in the mss. before lactentibus, and so again below. Mars pater, in v. 20, the mss. omit, and in v. 23 they put it before eiusdem rei ergo.

154. (a.) Iupiter dapalis, quod tibi fieri oportet in domo familiaeque mea culignam vini dapi, eius rei ergo macte illace dape pollucenda esto.
- (b.) Iupiter dapalis,
macte istace dape pollucenda esto,

155. (a.) Iane pater, te hac strue commovenda bonas preces precor, quaesoque uti sies volens propitius mihi, domo, liberisque meis, familiaeque meae.
- (b.) Iupiter, te hoc fercto obmovendo
bonas preces precor, quaesoque uti sies

liberisque meis, familiaeque meae;
mactus hoc fercto.
- (c.) Iane pater, uti te strue commovenda bonas preces bene precatus sum,
eiusdem rei ergo
macte vino inferio esto.

154. Ibid. 132. A daps, or sacrificial feast, is offered to Iupiter dapalis before sowing grain. After the first prayer the hands are washed, and wine is presented with the second. The ritual is not plain; but perhaps both prayers are merely prefatory to the daps proper, which consists of 'assaria pecuina' and an urna (not a culigna) of wine. — ferri in its sacrificial sense, 'be offered.' For facere used of a libation, see Liv. x. 42, 7. It takes either accusative or ablative; facere porcum or porco; see n. 156, v. 2. — The borrowed word culignam = κυλίχνην is surprising here, and has probably replaced some older term. — macte illace: the mss. macte hac illace.

155. Ibid. 134. Sacrifice of a porca praecidanea to Ceres, before the harvest. The ceremony is to be begun by offerings of food and wine to

 macte vino inferio esto.

156. Si deus, si dea es, quoium illud sacrum est, uti tibi ius siet porco [piaculo] facere illiusce sacri coercendi ergo.
 Harumce rerum ergo,
 5 sive ego sive quis iussu meo fecerit, macte hoc porco [piaculo] immolando esto.

Janus and Jupiter, with these prayers. Both strues and ferctum are sacrificial cakes: the former is described as consisting of several long cakes joined side by side, like the fingers of the hand. Observe the exactness of the sacrificial language: struem commovere, but ferctum obmovere. — quaesoque I have added from n. 153, v. 2. — domo in both a and b the mss. place after liberisque meis; but see n. 156, v. 10, and n. 153, v. 3, 15.

156. Ibid. 139. Formula for the clearing of a wood ('lucum conlucare Romano more sic oportet'). A swine is offered as a piaculum, to appease the forest-divinities whose domain is to be encroached on. — Si deus, si dea: such expressions were used at times to avoid the possible blunder of calling on the wrong deity—a scrupulousness characteristic of Roman worship. So when an earthquake occurred (Gell. ii, 28), a propitiatory sacrifice was offered si deo si deae, for fear that there might be some uncertainty as to what particular god was thus showing his displeasure. Si . . . si = sive . . . sive. Cp. Plaut. Capt. 110. — quoium (= cuium): the possessive adjective quouis, frequent in Plaut. and Ter. (quoia vox, quoium puerum). — sacrum: 'sacred domain.' — piaculo (v. 2, 8, 13) I suspect, metri causa. Cato does not seem to have fully felt the rhythm of the carmina which he reproduces. — coercendi (v. 3): 'restraining' or 'limiting' the sacred wood, is a mild expression for cutting it down. — fecerit (v. 5) refers of course to the felling of the trees.

Fragments of the Carmina Saliaria.

157. (a.) Cumé tonás, Leucésie, praé tét tremónti,

- (b.) Dívom † émpta cánte divóm deo súpplícáte.

157. The Salii were a religious sodalitas (for this term see on n. 149) who were concerned with the worship of Mars. On various festival-days in the month of March they performed solemn processions and dances, bearing the twelve sacred ancilia. The famous ancient songs which they chanted on these occasions were called axamenta. This name is from axare, 'repeat' (found in Festus), a frequentative from ā-io = ag-io* (root ag-, 'say,' as in ad-ag-ium), as taxare from tango (root tag-). Axare presupposes a participle axus*; as indeed all 'frequentatives' and 'intensives' are secondary verbs derived from participles. These Salian hymns were, according to Quintilian (i. 6, 40), hardly understood by the priests who sang them. They were addressed not to Mars only, but to other gods as well, and different portions were accordingly called versus Ianui, Iovii, Iunonii, etc. Only two or three connected bits of these hymns have reached us, in an exceedingly corrupt state. Various scholars have tried to restore them, Bergk and Corssen with the most success, but their interpretations differ greatly. I have given above all that seems to have the smallest probability critically.

Fragment a is the most certain. Bergk reconstructed it from cume ponas Leucesiae praextexere monti quotibet cunei de his cum tonarem (Terentius Scaurus, p. 226I, P.); but Festus gives prae tet tremonti. The lines read as Saturnians of a rather rude sort (cp. the carmen Arvale, n. 149), and there can be no doubt that such was the metrical form of all the hymns.—cume = cum; expressly attested by Scaurus; Festus has also tame = tam.—Leucesie = Lūcētie, 'light-god,' a surname of Jupiter. The s has arisen from the t by a softening not uncommon in Latin: the diphthong eu, on the other hand, is an antiquity: Introd. 10, note: cp. λευκός.—tet for ted (Introd. 44). Perhaps an older form, though the t may have come merely from assimilation to the following.—tremonti = tremunt; the only instance of this full ending of the 3d person plural: cp. Doric λέγοντι = λέγουσι.—cunei: 'bolts' of lightning.—dextumum: adverbial, 'on the right'; a superlative formation, whereas dexter is comparative. The right, in Roman augural science, was the unlucky side. — tonaront: the perfect tonavi is not elsewhere found.

Fragment b: Varro, Ling. Lat. vii. 27 (where supplicante). — cante is canite, but what empta means no one knows: Bergk conjectures templa. — divom deo: Janus is meant.

Fragment c is in Varro, L. L. vii. 26, where the following stands: coezulodoizeso omnia vero adpatula coemisse iamcusianes duo misceruses dun ianusve vet pos melios eumrecum. I give the least desperate part of this, nearly with Corssen (following also a suggestion of Wordsworth's). — adpatula = patula. — coemisse = coemēre in the sense of conceperunt (emo meant originally 'take'); with ī (as in emī, emīsti, etc.) and s for later ē and r. — cusianes = curiones, officers of the Salii. There was a curia or assembly-hall of the brotherhood on the Palatine. — cerus: see on n. 22. — The whole would mean: 'the curiones of Janus have in truth perceived clear omens: thou art the good creator, good Janus.' But all this is extremely uncertain, and so is the metrical grouping which I have given, merely as a rough indication of the way in which the verses may have run.

We know from Festus and Varro a good many single words from the Salian hymns, of which I select the following: foedesum = foederum; plusima = plurima; meliosem = meliozem; asenam = arenam; pilumnoe poploe = 'the spear-armed host' (gen. sing. ? pilumno-s, for pilōmeno-s*, is a participle like δηλούμενο-ς, and points to an old verb pilo-ēre* = pilo armare. Another remnant of the Latin o-conjugation is aegrōtus, from aegro-ēre*, 'make ill'); promenervat = promonet, from an adjective menervo-s, 'thoughtful,' whence Menerva, cp. n. 36; sonivio = sonanti; cerus manus = creator bonus; privicloes (i.e., priviculis) = singulis, with an interesting ancient form of the dative plural.

158. Varro, Ling. Lat. vi. 27. Formulae used by the Pontifex minor in announcing to the assembled people (comitia calata), at the appearance of each new moon (kalendae), whether the nones on that month would fall on the fifth or seventh day. Iuno Covella is the 'hollow' or crescent moon: Covella is a diminutive of cova* = cava. 'I proclaim thee for five days,' seems to mean that the hollow or 'new' moon will last during that time; that is, up to the 'first quarter' or nones. The verses are Saturnians, but in cálo we have a short thesis. Besides the old verb calāre, there must have been a calēre (or calēre), whence calendae.

Form of a Devotio.

159. Iane, Iuppiter, Mars pater, Quirine, Bellona, Lares, divi Novensiles, di Indigetes, divi quorum est potestas nostrorum hostiumque, dique Manes, vos precor, veneror, veniam peto feroque, uti populo Romano Quiritium vim victoriamque prosperetis, hostesque populi Romani Quiritium terrore formidine morteque adficiatis. Sicut verbis nuncupavi, ita pro re publica populi Romani Quiritium, exercitu legionibus auxiliis populi Romani Quiritium, legiones auxiliaque hostium mecum deis manibus Tellurique devoveo.

159. The formula given by Livy (viii. 9) as used by the elder Decius in devoting himself to death at the battle of Vesuvius, 414/340. He repeats the words after the pontifex, then mounts his horse and charges into the midst of the foe, where he finds his death. The formula is no special one composed for the occasion, but a traditional one handed down from antiquity. For, from the details which Livy gives, it is clear that there was an elaborate ceremonial, with provisions for this and that occurrence; which is proof, as Preller (Röm. Myth., p. 468) remarks, that "in the Italy of earlier times such devotions, in the bloody struggles among so many contentious nations, were nothing uncommon." The idea of the devotio is that the commander or other warrior, by voluntarily sacrificing himself to the gods of the lower world, averts their fury from his own countrymen and turns it against the enemy's hosts. A supernatural panic was believed to seize on the foe. The above formula is certainly a carmen, and the indications of rhythm and alliteration show that metrically it stood on a line with the prayers in Cato (n. 153, fig.). The following reconstruction I give merely exempli causa :—

Iane, Iuppiter,	Mars pater, Quirine, Duellona, Lares,
divi Novensiles,	divi Indigetes,
di quorum est potestas	nostrorum hostiumque,
divique Manes,	vos precor, veneror,
veniamque peto,	uti populo Romano
vim victoriam	prosperetis,
perduelles hostesque	populi Romani
terrore formidine	morteque adfexitis.
Sicuti verbis	nunc nuncupavi,
ita pro re publica	populi Romani
legionibus auxiliis	populi Romani,
legiones auxilia	hostium mecum divis Manibus,	Telluri devoveo.

Formulae of the Fetiales.For demanding restitution.

160. (a.) Audi Iuppiter, audite fines populi Albani, audiat Fas.
 Sum publicus nuntius populi Romani;
 iuste pieque legatus venio,
 5 verbisque meis fides siet.

 Si iniuste impieque illos homines illasque res dedier mihi exposco, tum patriae compotem me numquam siris esse.

Iane: invoked, as commonly, first of a series of deities.—Iuppiter, Mars, Quirine: the three gods who had flamines maiores.—divi Novensiles: usually explained as the 'newly settled' or 'foreign' gods, in opposition to the Indigetes (indu- and root ge-) or 'home-born,' 'national' gods. In inscriptions we have nove(n)sides (n. 57), and, according to Mommsen, this is the only genuine form.—nostrorum = nostrum: see Allen and Greenough's Gram., 99 b, and cp. Plaut. Most., 270.—fero: 'receive'? But the word probably does not belong in the text.

160. The Fetiales were a public religious collegium who were the guardians of international relations on their religious side: it was their duty to attend to the proper formalities in declaring war, making peace, and the like, so that all might be done rite, and the approval of the gods secured. The collegium kept alive the knowledge of the proper ceremonial for all cases; this was the iūs fetialium. The fetiales were an ancient Italic institution, and existed not in Rome only but in the kindred Italic states, where they had similar ceremonies. When they went abroad they took with them a clod of turf (sagmina or verbena) from the arx, symbolizing the land from which they came; also a sacred stone (Iuppiter lapis) and a sacred wand.—I have ventured to divide the ferial carmina into such primitive verses as we must suppose them to have originally consisted of (see Introd. 69), and have made some changes which seemed to recall more nearly their original form. In the books of the fetials of a later day, whence the annalists took them, they had undergone many modifications.

The form for demanding restitution (rerum repetundarum, also called clarigatio) is from Liv. i. 32: in v. 3 the received text reads ego sum, in v. 5 sit, in v. 6 si ego. populi Albani, v. 2, I insert merely by way of example

(b.) Audi Iuppiter, [et tu] Iane Quirine, dique audite omnes caelestes vosque terrestres vosque inferni.
 Ego vos testor populum Albanum iniustum esse neque ius persolvere.

For declaring war.

161. Quod populus Albanus hominesque Albani in populum Romanum fecerunt deliquerunt, quod populus Romanus cūm populo Albano duellum iussit esse, ob eam rem ego populusque Romanus populo Albano hominibusque Albanis duellum dico facioque.

(Livy says 'cuiuscumque gentis sunt, nominat'). The legatus who is sent on the mission is a pater patratus ('appointed father')—a member of the fetial body set apart to represent the head of the Roman state—accompanied by three other fetials. He uses this formula on arriving at the foreign boundary, and the same, with slight variations, on meeting the first citizen of the foreign state, on entering the city-gate and the market-place. After v. 5 the demands (postulata) are recited, and Jove is called to witness the following oath.—If, after thirty days, restitution is not made, the form b is used.—Iane Quirine: Janus bore the surname Quirinus as war-god. The god Quirinus was different.—audite (v. 2) Livy puts after inferni.—After persolvere follows: 'Sed de istis rebus in patria maiores natu consulemus, quo pacto ius nostrum adipiscamur,' which seems to be no part of the original formula.

161. In declaring war, the fetial went to the enemy's boundaries and threw a spear across them in the presence of witnesses, with the above formula, which I give according to Cincius (in Gell. xvi. 4), but with several corrections from Liv. i. 32: in v. 2 both sources give adversus, for which I have put in; and in v. 4, 7, bellum. For Albanus Cincius has Hermundulus. The last line might possibly have been purum piumque duellum dico facioque; see just above in Livy the solemn form of treating the matter in the senate.

162. Liv. i. 24. The head of the college of fetials addresses the king, the form of whose answer (in the affirmative) is not given.—Rex, iubesne me: Livy gives iubesne me, rex.—After the response puram tollito, the fetial fetches the clod from the arx, and goes on.—populi Romani: Livy adds Quiritium, which did not, however, belong anciently in these formulae.

For making a treaty.

162. (a.) FET. Rex, iubesne me cum patre patrato populi Albani foedus ferire?

REX.

FET. Sagmina verbenam te, rex, posco.

REX. Puram tollito.

FET. Rex, facisne me regium nuntium populi Romani, vasaque mea comitesque meos?

REX. Quod sine fraude mea populique Romani fiat, facio.

(b.) Audi Iuppiter, audi pater patrato populi Albani, audi et tu populus Albanus ;
ut illa palam prima postrema 5 sunt recitata sine dolo malo, utique ea hic hodie sunt intellecta, illis legibus populus Romanus prior non deficiet.
Si prior defexit publico consilio 10 dolo malo, tum illo die, Iuppiter, populum Romanum sic ferito, uti ego hunc porcum hic hodie feriam ;
tantoque magis tu ferito quanto tu magis potes pollesque.

It is absent in b, and in Cincius's version of n. 161. — vasa: 'equipments,' the sagmina, lapis, etc. — sine fraude mea: see on n. 106, l. 4.

The fetial then appoints a pater patratus, and the latter solemnizes the treaty. First he recites the conditions 'longo carmine'; then, standing over the swine with the sacrificial stone axe in his hand, he proceeds as in b. — After v. 4 stands ex illis tabulis cerave, which, as Weissenborn remarks, is an addition of later times, when written treaties had taken the place of the ancient verbal ones. — sunt recitata: Livy recitata sunt, and below intellecta sunt. After hodie I have omitted rectissime. — defexit (v. 9) = defecerit.

Form of proposing a Ver Sacrum.

163. Velitis iubeatisne haec sic fieri? Si res publica populi Romani Quiritium ad quinquennium proximum steterit ut velim, eamque salvam servaverit hisce duellis, tum donum duit populus Romanus Quiritium: quod duellum populo Romano cum Carthaginensi est, quaeque duella cum Gallis sunt, qui cis Alpes sunt: quod ver adtulerit ex suillo ovillo caprino bovillo grege, quaeque profana erunt, Iovi fieri, ex qua die senatus populusque iusserit: qui faciet, quando volet quaque lege volet, facito; quomodo faxit probe factum esto: si id moritur quod fieri oportebit, profanum esto, neque scelus esto: si quis rumpet occidetve insciens, ne fraus esto: si quis clepsit, ne populo scelus esto, neve cui cleptum erit: si atro die faxit insciens, probe factum esto: si nocte sive luce, si servos sive liber faxit, probe factum esto: si antidea ac senatus populusque iusserit fieri, faxitur, eo populus solutus liber esto.

163. Liv. xxii. 10. Used after the battle at the Lacus Trasimennus 537/217. The ver sacrum was an ancient Italic custom. It was vowed when the state was in extreme peril: all the young animals born in a particular season were sacrificed. There are indications that in remote antiquity even the children born shared the same fate. The above is not exactly the form of the vow itself, but the proposal made to the comitia. The language, however, emanated from the pontifices, and consists in great part of pontifical formulae, which betray here and there their ancient verse-form. I follow Weissenborn's text (1877).—servaverit: subject is Iuppiter, who is named a little below.—duit: Introd. 60.—quod duellum . . . quaeque duella: these relative clauses define hisce duellis above.—bovillo (= bovulo) is a very rare word.—quaeque profana erunt: 'and which shall not have been already consecrated to some other deity.'—Iovi fieri is the explanation to donum above; fieri = immolari.—ex qua die: the time within which the animals born are to be sacred, is to be fixed by public authority, not left to each individual's preference.—qua lege = quo ritu: cp. n. 92.—profanum esto: 'let it be as if the animal had not been consecrated,' so that the failure to offer it shall be accounted no fault.—

Form of Adrogatio.

164. Velitis iubeatis uti L. Valerius L. Titio tam iure legeque filius siet, quam si ex eo patre matreque familias eius natus esset, utique ei vitae necisque in eum potestas siet uti patri endo filio est. Haec ita uti dixi, ita vos Quirites rogo.

Fragments of the 'Leges Regiae.'

165. Si nurus plorassit, sacra divis parentum estod.
166. Si parentem puer verberit, ast olle plorassit, puer divis parentum sacer esto.

rumpet: 'shall injure,' 'mar.' — clepsit (= clepserit) formed like faxit. — atro die: 'black days,' on which it was wrong to sacrifice, were especially those following the calends, nones, and ides (dies postriduanus). — si . . . sive: for sive . . . sive, as regularly in Plautus and Terence. — antidea ac = antea quam (antequam), antid (ablative) being the older form of ante. So antidhac in Plaut. — faxitur = factum erit; passive of faxit. Cp. mercassitur, n. 152.

164. Gellius, v. 19. Adrogatio was the adoption, with his own consent, of an adult who was sui iuris, and was accomplished by an act of the comitia curiata, according to the above form. — endo = in.

165. The 'laws' ascribed by tradition to this and that king are in reality legal and religious maxims, of great antiquity, so far as their contents are concerned, but of uncertain origin. The oldest collection of them bore the name of Papirius. In so far as they embody actual ancient formulae, they were certainly once versified. But they had at an early time been freely modernized. This first fragment is in Festus, p. 230. There is a gap of several words; plorassit is inferred. Compare the next. Both laws punished maltreatment of parents. — estod: Introd. 62.

166. Fest., ibid. — verberit: pres. indic. of an otherwise unknown verberire* = verberare. For the tense see on n. 171. — ast: 'and if,' introducing a second condition. — olle: Introd. 49. — plorassit: Introd. 59: plorare meant in old Latin 'cry out.' — sacer esto: this implied originally actual slaying as a sacrifice to the god: later a kind of outlawry, in which any one might lawfully kill the offender. — divis: tutelary or family gods.

167. Vino rogum ne respargito.
168. Paelex aram Iunonis ne tangito ; si tanget, Iunoni crinibus demissis agnum feminam caedito.
169. (a.) Si hominem fulmen Iovis occisit, ne supra genua tollito.
(b.) Homo si fulmine occisus est, ei iusta nulla fieri oportet.
170. Cui suo auspicio classe procincta opima spolia capiuntur, Iovi Feretrio bovem caedito, et darier aeris trecentos oportet. Cuius auspicio classe procincta secunda spolia capta, in Martis aram in campo solitaurilia, ultra voluerit, caedito ;

167. Plin. H. N., xiv. 12. Attributed to Numa, as are also the next five. — respargito = respargito. Cp. aspargit, Lucr. i. 719.

168. Festus, p. 222: Gell. iv. 3. — paelex: 'concubine,' of a married man. — Iunonis: Lucina, guardian of married women.

169. Fest., p. 178. One of the many superstitious observances connected with lightning. — fulmen Iovis: the ms. fulminibus. — occisit = occidit: Introd. 59. — ne . . . tollito: 'let no one raise him higher than the knees.' He must be lifted as little as possible from the ground, and buried on the spot, without funeral rites (iusta). The man was thought to have been accursed, as stricken down by Jove in his wrath.

170. Fest., p. 189, where it is badly muddled. Luckily the substance of the law is known from Plutarch, Marc. 8. I give it nearly according to Hertzberg's emendation, who, with one or two transpositions, some additions, and the change of cuius to cui suo at the beginning, has produced the requisite sense. Opima spolia are obtained when the Roman commander kills the leader of the enemy in single combat: the victor gets for this a reward of 300 asses. Secunda and tertia spolia are evidently taken, presumably from the hostile leader, by some other person than the commander, but by whom we do not know; for these a reward of 200 and 100 asses respectively is given. In all three cases the commander, under whose auspices the victory was gained, performs the proper sacrifices. — cui = a quo. — classe procincta: 'with army girded' for battle (with the cinctus Gabinus); that is, in regular pitched battle. 'Army,' not 'fleet,' is the older meaning of classis. — Iovi Feretrio: whose temple was on the Capitol: cp. Liv. i. 10. — darier (Introd. 64): sc. ei. — trecentos:

qui cepit aeris ducentos dato. Cuius auspicio classe pro- cincta tertia spolia capta, Ianui Quirino agnum marem caedito; centum qui ceperit ex aere dato. Dis piaculum dato.

171. Si qui hominem liberum dolo sciens morti duit, paricidas esto.
172. Si quisquam aliuta faxit, ipsos Iovi sacer esto.
173. Duomviri perduellionem iudicent: si a duomviris provocarit, provocatione certato: si vincent, caput obnubito, infelici arbori reste suspendito, verberato vel intra pómoerium vel extra pómoerium.

sc. nummos.—solitaurilia: the same as suovitaurlia. The name (from the old adjective sollus) signifies a sacrifice of 'whole' (i.e., uncastrated) animals,—bull, ram, and boar.—utra voluerit: either the maiora, of adult animals, or the lactentia, of sucklings: cp. n. 153, v. 20.—(ei) qui cepit: 'to him who took them let him (the commander) give,' etc.—Ianui: Ianus seems here an u-stem, Ianu-. But very likely Ianuo should be read. Cp. ianua, Ianuā-rius. For Ianus Quirinus see on 160 (b).—dis piaculum dato: these words are uncertain and obscure.

171. Fest., p. 221.—qui = quis.—duit: the present indicative of a rare verb, duēre = dare*. Cp. n. 182, 204, and Liv. x. 19, 17. Duim, Introd. 60, is subjunctive of the same. In these ancient laws the present indicative is often used in the condition, where later usage would demand the future or future perfect. See n. 174, and others following. So Plaut. Trin. 156, si . . . revenit, reddam suom sibi.—paricidas: survival of nominative -s with a masculine a-stem. So hosticapas, 'hostium captor,' in Festus. These isolated forms are the only instances.

172. Fest., p. 6.—aliuta = aliter. Cp. i-ta.—ipsos = ipsus, ipse.

173. Liv. i. 26, where it is called 'lex horrendi carminis.'—Duomviri: appointed by the king.—certato: by a trial before the populus.—infelici arbori: probably locative. A barren tree, accursed and belonging to the nether gods.—verberato: of course before the execution, but the scourging is mentioned last, as of less importance.—This carmen was certainly in rhythm, possibly somewhat as follows: Duomviri iudicent perduellionem: si is provocarit provocatione certato: si vincent duomviri caput obnubito; infelici arbori reste suspendito, verberato virgis vel intra pómoerium vel extra pómoerium.

Fragments of the Laws of the Twelve Tables.

I.

174. Si in ius vocat, ito. Ni it, antestamino, igitur em capito. Si calvitur pedemve struit, manum endo iacito. Si morbus aevitasve vitium escit, iumentum dato : si nolet, arceram ne sternito.

174. The Twelve Tables, the first regular code of written law which the Romans had, date from 303/451 (the decemviri; the last two tables were added the following year), and were based upon the older unwritten and imperfectly formulated laws of custom, introducing, however, some innovations. The laws were written on twelve tablets of bronze, but it is doubtful whether these originals survived the capture of the city by the Gauls, 364/390. The scanty existing fragments have been much modernized; their distribution among the different tables is far from certain. The standard critical edition is R. Schoell's, 1866, which I have followed in the main, giving of course only such fragments as contain connected words of the Tables themselves.

Preliminaries to the trial. The first step is the summoning of the adversary to go before the magistrate (in ius vocare).—vocat, ito: note the absence of pronouns, as usual in these laws, often verging on obscurity. In some places explanatory words and clauses, out of keeping with this brevity of diction, have been interpolated: see below, and n. 176, 179. The imperatives in these laws are always of the third person.—antestamino: Introd. 63: 'let him call the bystanders to witness' that force is necessary. How this was performed the student will remember from Hor. Sat. i. 9, 76.—igitur: 'then.'—em: 'him.' Introd. 47.—si calvitur . . . struit: 'if he shirks or runs away' (?). What pedem struere was, the ancients themselves did not know, but on the whole thought it to mean 'run away.' Can it be 'brace the feet,' like one resisting a pull?—endo iacito = inicitio, but not yet fused into a compound. A greater degree of force seems to be implied than in capito.—Si morbus, etc.: if the defendant is ill or decrepit, the plaintiff must provide a vehicle, but this need not be a covered carriage unless he chooses.—aevitas = aetas.—vitium: 'hindrance.'—escit = est: for es-scit*, an inceptive present-formation, not yet, as in Lucretius, with a distinct future meaning. After escit Schoell has removed the interpolation qui in ius vocabit.—iumentum: 'team,' implies here, as often in our parlance, some sort of vehicle.—arceram: a covered carriage, with a pallet for lying down.—ne sternito: 'he need not spread' unless he chooses.—The three parts of this fragment are in Porphyr. ad Hor. Sat. i. 9, 70; Fest., pp. 310, 210; Gell. xx. 1, 24, respectively.

175. Adsiduo vindex adsiduos esto, proletario iam civi quis volet vindex esto.
176. Rem ubi pacunt, orato. Ni pacunt, in comitio aut in foro ante meridiem caussam coiciunto. Com perorando ambo praesentes. Post meridiem praesenti litem addicito. Sol occasus suprema tempestas esto.

II.

177. . . . morbus soticus . . . aut status dies cum hoste . . . quid horum fuit vitium iudici arbitrove reove, eo dies diffensus esto.

175. Gell. xvi. 10, 5. 'The vindex of a property-holder must be a property-holder; but whoever chooses can be vindex to a man without property.' vindex, 'claimant,' 'interferer,' 'protector,' is here one who voluntarily agrees to go before the magistrate as the representative of the defendant, and thereby takes upon himself the action in the stead of the latter. For the vindex at another stage of proceedings, see n. 179. — adsiduos: 'permanent settler,' and so 'land-holder,' 'tax-payer,' — belonging to one of the five upper Servian classes. The proletarius, on the other hand, is a capite census, one of the sixth or lowest class. — quis volet: see n. 80 and note.

176. Partly Rhet. ad Her. ii. 13, 20; partly Gell. xvii. 2, 10. The trial. 'Where they (the litigants) compromise the matter, let him (the magistrate) announce it. If they do not compromise, let them state briefly each his own side of the case, in the comitium or the forum, before noon. (Afterwards) let them talk it out together, while both are present. (In case either party has failed to appear) after noon, let the magistrate pronounce judgment in favor of the one who is present. (If both are present) the trial may last till sunset, but not later.' — pacunt: Ter. Scaurus and Quintilian both read this c as g. Still it is not quite certain whether this old present (cp. n. 193) was pāg-o (root as in pango, pepigi) or pāc-o (root as in pāc-iscor). — com = cum; adverbial. — Before sol stands the interpolation si ambo praesentes. — occasus: the (rare) participle: 'the set sun' = sunset: cp. ante solem occasum, Plaut. Epid. i. 2, 41. — suprema tempestas: 'the latest hour' for holding court.

177. soticus: from sons; 'hurtful,' and so 'serious.' — status dies: 'appointed day' for a trial. — cum hoste: 'with a foreigner': the original meaning of hostis. — quid = quidquid. — vitium: as in n. 174. — arbitro: see note on recuperatorem, n. 103, l. 4. — reo: reus in the older language meant either of the litigants, whoever is involved in a res; cp. Cic. de Orat. ii. 79. — eo: 'on this account.' — diffensus: from diffendo*; 'put off.' If judge or either of the litigants is ill or has a judicial appointment with a foreigner, the trial is to be postponed. — This fragment is put together from Gell. xx. 1, 27; Cic. de off. i. 12; Fest., p. 273.

178. Fest., pp. 233, 375. He whose witness has failed to appear may summon him by loud calls in front of his house (obvagulatio) every third (?) day. — defuerit: future perfect. — tertiis diebus is most naturally taken as tertio quoque die, but very likely means 'every other day,' after the old-fashioned way of counting. — portum: according to Festus means 'house,' perhaps rather 'doorway.' — obvagulatum: supine. The verb points to a noun vāgulus*. The root is of course the same as in vāg-īre.

179. Execution for debt. 'One who has confessed a debt, or against whom judgment has been pronounced, shall have thirty days to pay it in. After that, forcible seizure of his person is allowed. The creditor is to bring him before the magistrate. Unless he pays the amount of the judgment, or some one in the presence of the magistrate (in iure) interferes in his behalf as vindex, the creditor is to take him home, and fasten him in stocks or fetters. He is to fasten him with not less than fifteen pounds of weight, or, if he choose, with more (?). If the prisoner choose he may furnish his own food. If he does not do this, the creditor must give him a pound of meal daily: if he choose he may give more.' Gellius, xx. 1, 45. — aëris . . . sunt: the meaning is clear, but the text is questionable: as it is, genitive and dative stand parallel; 'thirty days shall be the lawful limit of an acknowledged debt and for matters that have been decided.' Schoell brackets rebusque iure so as to construe, 'for those who have been condemned in an acknowledged debt.' — endo eo (= in eo): 'over him,' 'in his behalf': cp. in ea glaeba vindicarent, Gell. xx. 10, 9. — vindicit: probably present indicative of a vindicāre* = vindicare: cp. verberit, n. 166. A vindex interfering at this stage of the proceedings, could stay the execution, but he became responsible for double the amount in case the cause on rehearing was decided against him. — nervo: Festus defines, 'ferreum vinculum quo pedes impediuntur, quamquam Plautus eo etiam cervices vinciri ait.' — minore and maiore should very probably be exchanged, so as to make the limitation in the prisoner's favor. — libras . . . endo dies: 'pounds day by day,' i.e., 'a pound every day.' Before libras was interpolated qui eum vinctum habebit, which Schoell removed.

180. Gell. xx. 1, 49. Tertiis nundinis: the prisoner was to be confined sixty days, and on the last three market-days he had to be brought before the magistrate to give an opportunity for any one to redeem him. At the end of that time his person was forfeited to the creditor or creditors, who might kill him and divide his body among them. The ancients agree in explaining partis secanto in this way (partis is of course accusative), though they add that no actual case of the kind was ever known. In point of fact this right was waived, and the debtor sold into slavery. (Some modern scholars understand secanto of a division of goods.) — plus minusve: than each one's share. — se fraude: see on n. 151.

181. Cic. de off. i. 12. 'Against a foreigner the right in property shall be everlasting,' meaning that a foreigner can never acquire a right by mere undisturbed occupation for any time (usucapio).

182. Ulp. fr. x. 1, Gaius i. 132. — venum duit = venum dat, vendit. Pres. indic., cp. n. 171. The uu for ū, supposing that the spelling is right; but the form is not to be depended on, the chief ms. having davit. A father, by virtue of the patria potestas, could sell his son, who thereby became the mancipium of another. If emancipated, he fell back into the potestas of his father again. But if this was repeated, at the third emancipatio he was free.

183. Ulp. fr. xi. 14. The validity of wills. — legassit: for the earliest time legare and testari must be understood of verbal wills. — tutela suae rei: of course in case the heirs are minors. — ita ius esto: 'so let it be binding.' — intestato: impersonal abl. absolute, like inconsulto, necopinato. — nec escit = non est. On escit, see n. 174, and note: nec = non, as in neg-lego, etc. — adgnatus: a blood-relation through males — brother or sister, brother's son, etc. — less comprehensive than cognatus. — gentiles: all of the same gens.

184. Cic. de inv. ii. 50. — furiosus implies a greater degree of madness than insanus. — adgnatum: gen. plur.

185. Fest., p. 162. Schoell inserts this in the preceding fragment, after escit.

186. Fest., p. 173. — nexum: 'bond'; an obligation putting the maker in the position of a iudicatus or judgment debtor. — mancipium: 'conveyance' of property. — nuncupassit is to be understood of the formal declaration of the contract before witnesses, which in early times took the place of a written document. — ita ius esto: as n. 183.

187. Gell. xx. 10, 8. — Manus conserere was a symbolical act, one of the preliminaries to an action concerning property. It was the formal claiming of the disputed object by both parties: both laid hands on it at the same time and pronounced certain formulae: it had to be done in the presence of the magistrate (in iure), who in early times, when land was in dispute, went to the spot for the purpose; later, a clod (glæba) from the piece of land was brought into court. On the basis of this the magistrate appointed a day for trial. — Si in: so Schoell; Gellius si qui in.

188. Fest., p. 364. A stolen beam which has been built into a house or a vineyard-trellis must not be dislodged by the owner: the law allowed him, however, an action for double the amount. — aedibus vineave: the rather rare ablative with iungere.—e concapit: Festus's text et concapit, for which Schoell e concapi; but I have retained -t as ablative case-ending, = later -d; cp. n. 157 (a). No such word as concapes or concape is known, but it might mean 'socket' or 'surrounding.' Still the reading is very uncertain. Huschke's correction si concapit (= concipit), 'if the owner discovers it,' is not bad.

189. Fest., p. 348.—'whenever they have been pruned, until they have been gathered,' namely, the grapes. Supply vina; cp. vin-demia, 'vintage.' The reference seems to be still to the stolen beam, which must be left in the vine-trellis between pruning-time and vintage. But the words are obscure, and have been variously interpreted.—sarpta: from sarpere, a rare verb, whence sarmentum, 'twig,' 'brushwood.'

190. Fest., p. 371, according to Mommsen's emendation. The reference is to viae privatae, where one owns a right of way over other men's land. The latter must make the road and keep it in order, else the former is not bound to keep to it, but may drive his team where he likes.—sam (= eam): from the rare pronoun-stem so-, sa- (= ó-, á-): Introd. 50. Only accusative-forms are known: sum, sam, sos, sas, all in Ennius.—delapidassint: 'have paved it'; from Festus we have the gloss 'delapidata, lapide strata.'

191. Pompon. in Dig. xl. 7, 21. An action might be brought against a neighbor for damage occasioned by any acts, of his which interfered with the natural drainage of the land.

192. Plin. N. H. xxviii. 2, 17. The reference is to evil spells or incantations. There was also a law against libel,—which is also called by writers malum carmen or famosum carmen,—and for this the verb used in the XII Tables was 'occentassit.'

193. Si membrum rupsit, ni cum eo pacit, talio esto. Manu fustive si os fregit libero CCC, si servo, CL poenam subito. Si iniuriam faxsit, viginti quinque poenae sunt.

197. Patronus si clienti fraudem fecerit, sacer esto.

193. The three parts from Gell. xx. 1, 14 (and Fest., p. 177); Paul. in Collat. leg. Mos. et Rom. ii. 5, 5; Gell. xx. 1, 12.—membrum: any limb or organ (as an eye).—rupsit (Introd. 59): 'maimed': cp. rumpet, n. 163.—pacit: cp. n. 176.—talio: the retaliation, according to Cato, devolved on the next of kin.—os fregit: as this was not a permanent injury, the punishment was less.—iniuriam: this includes assaults and insults. Schoell removed the interpolation alteri after this word.—viginti quinque: asses, and so above.—poenae: nom. plur.

194. Plin. N. H. xxviii. 2, 17.—excantassit: 'has charmed away' another's crops by magic spells. Comp. Verg. Ecl. viii. 99; Ovid. Am. iii. 7, 31, for allusions to this superstition.

195. Macrob. Sat. i. 4, 19; Cic. pro Tull. 47 and 50; cp. Fest., p. 309.—nox: adverb, = noctu. This strange form occurs again in a verse of Ennius, si luci, si nox, etc. (Ann. 412, Vahlen). It is difficult to explain. Bücheler thinks it a genitive, for noctis, noctis*.—im (Introd. 47) is the regularly formed accusative of i-s.—A robber by day-time one might kill only in case he used a weapon, but first one must call for help; for this the direction was endo plorato, that is, implorato = conclamato.

196. Fest., p. 162: 'If any one has recourse to process of law, in case of a theft which is not manifest, let the thief settle the damage by paying double.'—adorat: 'pleads the case,' 'causam agit,' instead of privately settling with the thief.—nec = non.—manifestum furtum: where the thief is caught in the act. Manifestus, 'hand-struck,' 'grasped with the hand.' The penalty for a furtum nec manifestum was much less severe than that for a furtum manifestum.

197. Serv. ad Aen. vi. 609.—sacer esto: see on n. 166.

203. Homini mortuo ne ossa legito, quo post funus faciat.

198. Gell. xv. 13, 11. — testarier : passive, 'be summoned as a witness,' corresponding to the active testare (cited by Priscian). — libripens : a sale (mancipium, see n. 186) had to be consummated in the presence of five witnesses and a 'weigher': the latter held the scales while the purchaser touched them with a copper coin; this act symbolized the former actual weighing-out of the price, at a time when as yet there was no coined money. — fariatur : present indicative from an otherwise unknown fāri-āri, 'speak,' derived, according to Corssen, from the noun-stem fārio- contained (with somewhat changed meaning) in ne-fārius. Schoell changes to fatiatur*, comparing infitiari. — inprobis : 'marked,' 'noted as dishonest.' — intestabilis : incapable of acting again as a witness.

199. Cic. pro Tull. 51 (cp. Top. 17). Accidental homicide. Note the sudden change of subject, first telum and then the man.

200. Cic. Leg. ii. 23. Observe that burning is already introduced at Rome, though burial was the ancient Roman custom.

202. Cic. ibid. — lessum : 'wailing'; occurs nowhere else. (In Plaut. Truc. 4, 2, 18, pausam is now restored.)

died abroad. Of course this did not forbid the simple taking up of the ashes to be placed in an urn. — quo = ut.

204. Plin. N. H. xxi. 3, 7. — parit: 'obtains,' as a prize in public games or otherwise. — pecunia: 'chattel'; as a horse or a slave which he might send to compete in the games. Nominative case: 'whoever wins a crown himself, or a chattel of his (does it for him)'; the relative clause continued by a demonstrative. — honoris and si Schoell inserts. — arduitur = additur: see n. 171, and for the double u on n. 182. — There followed parentive eius, se fraude esto, or something similar, as we know from Cic. Leg. ii. 24: 'if the crown is placed on his head or on his parent's (when either is buried), it shall not be a crime.'

205. Cic. Leg. ii. 24. Gold is not to be buried or burned with the corpse; but gold used for fastening teeth is excepted. Probably gold wires are to be understood. Primitive dentistry wired loose teeth to the solid ones, and false teeth may have been attached in like manner. — escunt: see on escit, n. 174. — im: as n. 195.

206. Ulp. in Dig. ix. 4, 2, 1. — noxiam: cognate accusative. — noxit = nocuerit. — In the case supposed, the master had to make restitution, or to give up the offender (noxae dedere) to the aggrieved person.

207. Fest., p. 376. — si vindiciam, etc.: 'if any one has obtained any thing by falsely claiming it.' — sive litis: text is incomplete and meaning uncertain: others read si velit is. — praetor, if right, means consul, magistrate; praetors in the later sense did not exist till 388/366. — tris = tres. — fructus . . . decidito: 'let him pay damages for its use meanwhile in double the amount.'

208. Fest., p. 246, where the text is in sad condition; but most of the emendations which I have admitted are tolerably certain. The date of the law has been put at 510/244, but this is not certain.—oetier = ūti: cp. n. 105, l. 9.—coeretur (cūretur): Huschke's emendation for coaequetur.—se = sine.—aequos aequo: a pleonasm like par pari and the like. Equality of capacity is meant.—librario: by librarius is evidently meant the dry sextarius, but why it is so called I cannot tell. Perhaps because its weight, in flour and other substances commonly measured by it, would be roughly a pound.—adversus hac: cp. n. 80.—modica: apparently 'smaller' than the modius, 7 sextarii and the rest.—iussit: future perfect; cp. iusso, Verg. Aen. xi. 467.—adduit = addit: cp. n. 171.—quis volet: as in n. 80.—minore parti: perhaps minorem partim. In the same phrase, n. 103, l. 12, the genitive is used.—in sacrum iudicare: Wordsworth explains, 'assign the amount to the sacred treasury,' instead of the aerarium, where fines ordinarily went.

209. Fest., p. 4. "Legibus etiam Laurentum sanctum est, ne pomum ex alieno legatur in armum"; whence this Saturnian is easily reconstructed. In légitó a short thesis (n. 74, v. 4). NEW BOOKS

AND

NEW EDITIONS FOR 1879.

LATIN.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF ROMAN LITERATURE FOR SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES. Translated and Edited from the German Edition of Bender by Professor E. P. Crowell and H. B. Richardson, A.M., Amherst College, Mass. (Ready in August.)

DE NATURA DEORUM. Translated and Edited from the German Edition of Schoeman by Professor Austin Stickney, formerly of Trinity College, Hartford. (Ready in August.)

REMNANTS OF EARLY LATIN, chiefly Inscriptions. Selected and Explained, for use in Colleges, by Frederick D. Allen, Professor of Latin in the University of Cincinnati. (Ready in June.)

Prepared to meet the need which many of our best teachers of Latin feel, of acquainting students with the earliest forms of Latin, as an aid to the better comprehension of the structure of the language. There is no such book in existence, the nearest thing to it being the large and extensive work of Wordsworth, which is not adapted to school use.

A CRITICAL HISTORY OF CICERO'S LETTERS. By R. F. Leighton, Ph.D., Principal of Brooklyn, N. Y., High School. The History of the Letters "ad Familiares" is nearly ready.

A N ELEMENTARY TREATISE ON LATIN ORTHOGRAPHY. Embracing the Latest Researches of Brambach, Ritschel, and others. With a Vocabulary of Words often Misspelled. By R. F. Leighton, Ph.D., Principal of Brooklyn, N. Y., High School.

SELECTIONS FROM THE LESS-KNOWN LATIN POETS — viz., Catullus, Lucretius, the Elegiac Writers, Lucan and Martial. By E. P. Crowell, A.M., Professor of Latin, Amherst College.

P ARALLEL SYNTAX OF THE MOODS IN GREEK AND LATIN. Prepared by R. P. Keep, Ph.D., Instructor in the Classical Department of Williston Seminary, at Easthampton, Mass. (Ready in June.)

A NEW AND COMPLETE VIRGIL. This Edition will be printed from wholly new plates, and will be fully annotated by Professor J. B. Greenough, Harvard University. It will also have numerous illustrations from the antique.

GINN & HEATH, Publishers, Boston, New York, and Chicago.

A REVISED EDITION OF ALLEN'S LATIN COMPOSITION. Simplified, carefully Graded, and Adapted to the New Allen & Greenough's Latin Grammar. By W. F. Allen, Professor of Latin and History at University of Wisconsin and Lecturer at Johns Hopkins University. (Ready in September.)

THE AGRICOLA OF TACITUS. Edited for School and College Use by W. F. Allen, Professor of Latin in University of Wisconsin.

GREEK.

THE PROMETHEUS OF AESCHYLUS. Edited, with Notes and Introduction, by Frederick D. Allen, Professor of Greek in the University of Cincinnati.

SELECT ORATIONS OF DEMOSTHENES. Edited by Frank B. Tarbell, Yale College. This work will contain the three Philippics and the Oration On the Chersonese, from the Zürich Edition of the Text, with an Extended Historical Introduction and Explanatory Notes.

THE PUBLIC HARANGUES OF DEMOSTHENES. Edited by Isaac Flagg, Ph. D., Professor of Greek in Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

This work has been undertaken in view of the fact that several speeches belonging to this head, of great merit and importance, have not as yet appeared in a form convenient for college reading. The commentary, appended to a carefully edited text, will be adapted to the requirements of students well advanced in Greek. Part First, forming a small volume by itself, will contain the three Hellenic Orations, Symmories, Megalopolitans, and Rhodians.

SELECTIONS FROM THE GREEK LYRIC POETS, with an Historical Introduction and Explanatory Notes. By Henry M. Tyler, Professor of Greek and Latin in Smith College, Northampton, Mass. (Ready in June.)

SELECTIONS FROM PINDAR AND THE BUCOLIC POETS, Containing six Odes of Pindar, four Idylls of Theocritus, a Hymn of Callimachus, a Hymn of Cleanthes, and one of the Homeric Hymns; in all thirteen hundred lines. Edited by Professor T. D. Seymour. Western Reserve College, Ohio. (Ready in January, 1880.)

THE FIRST THREE BOOKS OF HOMER'S ILIAD. By Professor F. E. Anderson, of Harvard University.

FIRST TWELVE BOOKS OF HOMER'S ODYSSEY. With Introduction, Notes, and Tables of Homeric Forms, for School Use. By W. W. Merry, A.M., Fellow and Lecturer of Lincoln College, Oxford, England.

GINN & HEATH, Publishers, Boston, New York, and Chicago.

L EIGHTON'S NEW GREEK LESSONS. With notes, references, and full vocabulary; and references to Hadley's Greek Grammar, as well as to Goodwin's New Greek Grammar. The Lessons have been rewritten and arranged on the plan of the author's Latin Lessons, introducing the verb from the first.

About sixty easy and well graded lessons, both Greek and English (one term's work), introduces the pupil to the first book of Xenophon's Anabasis. Definite directions are given in regard to the amount of the Grammar to be learned. The pupil is given a clear idea of noun and verb stems, and also some insight into the formation of words from stems and roots by means of significant endings. Questions for Review and examination as in the first edition. The amount of matter to be translated into Greek is sufficient to prepare a student in Greek composition for any American college. In preparing these lessons, considerable use has been made of the excellent exercises used in most of the German Gymnasiums, prepared by Dr. Wasener to accompany Professor Curtius' Greek Grammar.

A NEW AND ENLARGED EDITION OF WHITON'S LYSIAS. Two new orations will be added to those which the book now contains (Ready in September.)

MATHEMATICS.

A SERIES OF ARITHMETICS, Consisting of two books, Primary and Written. By Dr. Thomas Hill, ex-President of Harvard College, and George A. Wentworth, Professor of Mathematics in Phillips Exeter Academy.

A DIFFERENTIAL CALCULUS. With numerous Examples and Applications. Designed for use as a College Text-book. By W. E. Byerly, Ph.D., Harvard University. This book has been used two years in Harvard in manuscript form. (Ready in July.)

A N ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA. By George A. Wentworth, Professor of Mathematics in Phillips Exeter Academy.

A GEOMETRY FOR BEGINNERS. Adapted to Lower and Grammar School Work. By G. A. Hill, Harvard University. (Ready in September.)

The principles which underlie the method employed in this work are the following:—

1. Geometrical instruction for beginners should proceed from the concrete to the abstract.

2. It should seek to develop the intellectual powers, and especially the geometric imagination and the inventive faculty, by stimulating the self-activity of the learner.

3. It should be practical, — that is to say, it should seize every fitting opportunity to illustrate and explain the material uses of Geometry.

Agreeably to the first of these principles, in the beginning the distinction between a body, a surface, a line, and a point, is shown by the use of models, and later they are again employed to give clear ideas respecting the regular solids. Many conceptions and simple relations — such as occur, for instance, in the subject of parallels, of perpendiculars, of angles, of intersecting lines and planes, of equal figures, of similar figures, of polygons, &c. — are illustrated by reference to well-known objects; and, a variety of questions are asked, which the learner can answer by reflecting upon what he has seen. Throughout the work, definitions are not stated in an abstract form until the ideas which they involve are already known.

In proving theorems, instead of the formal method which begins with the theorem and follows with the proof, unfolded step by step in syllogistic reasoning, the method here adopted begins with the study of a figure and the relations of its parts, and proceeds to the theorem, by the comparison and combination of ideas, much in the same way as the discoverer of the theorem might have done. Care has been taken to select theorems which are simple, and which at the same time form a basis for useful problems and applications. In a few cases, where a theorem was very desirable on account of its applications, while its rigorous proof was clearly beyond the capacity of those for whom the book is designed, the author has not hesitated to substitute a less rigorous proof, or probable reasons of a simple kind. Why it should be thought that, in Geometry, the choice must, in each case, lie between the most refined product of the human intellect and nothing at all, the author is unable to see.

The idea of ratio is made to arise naturally from that of addition; and that of units of measure from that of ratio.

Special stress has been laid upon the laws of the equality and of the similarity of triangles; because, apart from their simple character, they are the keys to nine-tenths at least of the rest of Geometry, both theoretical and practical.

Great pains have been taken to explain, by examples, how geometrical problems are to be attacked and solved; and numerous easy constructions are given, as exercises for the learner.

Exercises are appended to almost every section, and to the end of each chapter, and form one of the chief features of the book. They supply the means of real intellectual training, by throwing the learner on his own resources, and leading him to invent and to generalize for himself. They have been very carefully selected and graded, and, where necessary, hints for their solution have been added.

Among the applications of Geometry which find a place in the work may be mentioned the testing of vertical and horizontal directions, drawing lines to scale, the construction of perpendicular lines and of angles on the ground, the application of the laws of the equality and similarity of triangles to the measurement of inaccessible distances, and a great number and variety of practical exercises upon the computation of lengths, areas, and volumes.

It is a great mistake to suppose that it requires any peculiar talent to understand the elements of Geometry. On the contrary, it is easier to trace the simple relations of forms and magnitudes than to trace, for example, those of numbers, because forms and magnitudes are concrete things while numbers are abstract; and Fröbel, the founder of the kindergarten, recognized this fact by choosing the most important means of object teaching out of the field of Geometry.

Everything depends on the method. Pestalozzi first showed how to make Geometry an easy, interesting, and profitable subject of study, in early education. His method, modified and improved by his successors, is now to be found under various forms in many excellent German text-books, and is now taught in German schools.

This method, in the main, is here adopted. The author has made a careful study of the best French and German text-books, and has seen the method in actual operation in the German schools. He is convinced that it is the true and only method for beginners.

The present work is adapted to ordinary pupils from twelve to fifteen years of age. It forms a suitable introduction to higher works on the same subject, and at the same time contains so much of Geometry as every one, women not excepted, may study with the greatest interest and profit. Had this method of teaching Geometry found the same foothold here that it has in Germany, there is little doubt in the author's mind that before now the subject would be here as it is in Germany, and ought to be everywhere, a part of common-school education.

G EOMETRICAL EXERCISES AND KEY TO EXERCISES IN WENTWORTH'S GEOMETRY. (Ready in July.)

S MALLER FOUR-PLACE TABLES OF LOGARITHMS. By James Mills Peirce, University Professor of Mathematics in Harvard College.

Under this name, the principal tables of the author's Three and Four-Place Tables, with some additions (among which are tables of the Hyperbolic Functions and of Squares and Reciprocals), are published in a duodecimo form, but in a clear, handsome, and good-sized type, cast for the purpose. The main features of the Three and Four-Place Tables are retained, so far as the size of the page permits; but the arrangement is in some respects improved, and is made readily intelligible to beginners in the use of logarithms. Full explanations are given with the tables.

The book may be had either separately or bound with the author's "Elements of Logarithms," or with "Wheeler's Trigonometry."

GINN & HEATH, Publishers, Boston, New York, and Chicago.

SCIENCE.

GUIDES FOR SCIENCE-TEACHING. Designed to supplement Lectures given to Teachers of the Public Schools of Boston, by the Boston Society of Natural History. They are intended for the use of Teachers who desire to practically instruct classes in Natural History. Besides simple illustrations and instructions as to the modes of presentation and study, there are, in each pamphlet, hints which will be found useful in preserving, preparing, collecting and purchasing specimens.

No. I. About Pebbles. By Alpheus Hyatt, Custodian of the Boston Society of Natural History, and Professor of Zoölogy and Paleontology in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This pamphlet is an illustration of the way in which a common object may be used profitably in teaching. This was the opening lecture of the course, and the one which gave rise to these little books. Price to Teachers, postpaid, 15 cents.

No. II. Concerning a Few Common Plants. By George L. Goodale, Professor of Botany in Harvard University. This is complete in two parts (which are bound together), and gives an account of the organs or "helpful parts" of plants, and how these can be cultivated and used in the schoolroom for the mental training of children. Price to Teachers, postpaid, 25 cents.

No. III. Commercial and other Sponges. By Professor Alpheus Hyatt. This gives an account of the Sponges in common use, and of their Structure, &c. Illustrated by 7 plates. Price to Teachers, postpaid, 30 cents.

No. IV. A First Lesson in Natural History. By Mrs. Elizabeth Agassiz. Illustrated by woodcuts and 4 plates. Price to Teachers, postpaid, 35 cents.

No. V. Corals and Echinoderms. By Professor Alpheus Hyatt. Illustrated. Price to Teachers, postpaid, 30 cents.

The remaining numbers of the Series cannot be issued until the coming fall, beginning in October. There will be eight more numbers, at the same average prices (ranging from 20 cents to 40 cents). The number on Insects may exceed this price, if the different orders are illustrated.

No. VI. Mollusca. Oyster, Clam, and Snail.

No. VII. Worms and Crustacea. Earth Worm, Lobster, Common Crab.

No. VIII. Insects. Grasshopper.

No. IX. Fishes. Yellow Perch.

No. X. Frogs. Common Frog and Toad.

No. XI. Reptiles. Alligators and Tortoises.

No. XII. Birds.

No. XIII. Mammals. Common Rat.
